On Being A Christmas Secretary

Someone says that the sentiment of the gift is the thing. Of course it is—but isn't the sentiment better expressed in a gift that is carefully selected than in one that is not? Why not give gifts that are the very thing the recipient most wants?

It's very easy—all a matter of selection. First, one must find the largest assortments, or the choicest assortments, and there is but the question of appropriateness and price.

For those who have no such selections at hand—and wish the advantage of them—the Christmas Secretary is a willing worker.

The name of Pettibone's Christmas Secretary is signed below. She promises you the same, and perhaps a trifle better, service than you would render yourself—an exceedingly careful selection of the gift things you wish.

Before discussing Christmas candles let us mention the well known and ever-present (at Christmas) holly and mistletoe. It would never do to attempt to get along without them. Wreaths of holly with bright sashes of scarlet ribbon just must hang in the windows, and mistletoe must be safely hung where it will do the most harm.

All the regular candles through the house must be put away in tissue paper and Christmas candles substituted. Cherry red will be found becoming to some rooms, while others will feel happier with the lovely green bay berry candles tied with red ribbons.

For the window, if one is fortunate enough to possess such a thing, a seven-branched candlestick can be used, its flagreed sticks all wound about with holly. I can assure you, it makes quite a "landscape".

Now as to mantelpieces and the table itself. Here's where the children can be the craftsmen again. Dishes piled with fruit are what we recommend for each mantleself. What shall we use for the dish? Why not a scooped out pumpkin? How do you like that for an idea? First one must make sure the pumpkin will stand quite firmly, and if necessary a slice should be cut off to insure this.

Then part of the top should be removed, and the inside cleaned very carefully and lined with waxed paper. The fruit can be piled in, and piled high above it too, with all the colors one can find. Red, yellow, and green apples, bananas, and oranges should be used.

A green squash, with its irregular shape makes an equally attractive dish and can be scooped out the same way.

For the center piece of the table a little scene can be worked out, which will give the children much pleasure. A mirror will make a pretty lake with its edges concealed under cotton "snow" sprinkled with mica. At one side of the lake where it will reflect in the water, a little cardboard house can stand. Its roof must be covered with snow, too, and it just must have a very generous chimney. Because that is where Santa comes in as we very well know. A red cotton Santa can sit atop the chimney or be in it with his little black boots sticking out. Trees made of the evergreens can stand about the house and the lake. If the children feel very ambitious, they can make a little cardboard sleigh for Santa and a pair of cardboard reindeer with stands so they will stay upright.

Then with appropriate place cards tied to sprigs of holly, or to tiny packages with foolish trifles in them, the table will look and feel as Christmasy as the rest of the house.

Of course, the little folks are on their very best behavior just before Christmas, but it is rather a strain on the poor dears to be good, with all the attendant excitement of preparing gifts and keeping secrets. So why not let them help decorate the house and make some of the Christmas decorations? It will keep them from becoming bored, and still more important, from getting into mischief.

There are many things they can do for the tree, as well as for the house. Even the littlest folks can ring popcorn and make paper chains of many bright colors. Popcorn in pink and white can be made to hang from branches, and the older children can use their ingenuity in making pretty things with colored cures on which tinsel backgrounds are pasted.

For an out-of-doors excursion in which old and young will be keenly interested there is the trip to the woods to gather evergreens. Pine branches, especially the white pine, are graceful for use anywhere in the house, as are also hemlock twigs with tiny cones hanging from them. Ground pine lends itself to garlands nicely. If an old dead evergreen can be found which is shedding its bark, an armful of this will be found very fragrant when burned in the fireplace.

If these evergreens are brought in many days before Christmas, care must be taken to keep them very wet, so that they will not drop their needles.

A garland of pine decorated with red apples will give a different effect and yet carry the Christmas colors.

Among other plants available for use are the lovely flaming poinsettias, and the graceful branches of the bitter-sweet. This latter can be kept all winter. Ivy makes a different household decoration, growing up on light trellises of wood or iron.

The children will be interested in the growing of bulbs, but this must be started well ahead of Christmas, at least six weeks. They can gather pebbles for filling small bowls. The bulbs are planted on top of the stones, and put away in the dark for two weeks. Oh yes, this part is very necessary so as to make the little roots grow long and firm. Then the bowls may be brought out into the sunlight.

Christmas at Bracebridge Hall

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

When you pick up Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" and browse among his delightful stories and descriptive incidents, you find that Irving and Charles Dickens are much alike in their appreciation and love for old English customs, particularly holiday customs. We all remember the Christmas cheer in the Christmas Carol and in Pickwick Papers which Dickens portrays so vividly that we feel, see and hear every detail.

Our own writer, Irving, born when George Washington became our first president, gives us his own keen delight in Christmas celebrations. To express it in his own words he says, "There is nothing in England that exercises a more delightful spell over my imagination than the lingerings of the holiday customs and rural games of former times."

With this feeling he has given us a memorable description of his experience at Bracebridge Hall.

It will be remembered that he was traveling in England during the winter and making a tour in Yorkshire by stage-coach on the day before Christmas. Arriving at an inn he chanced to meet Frank Bracebridge, a "young gentleman," with whom he had once journeyed in Europe. Bracebridge promptly invited Irving to his ancestral home a few miles distant where his father would keep Christmas in "old fashioned style." The manor was some distance from the main road which gave it every opportunity to be secluded and aloof from the more progressive spirit of the cities. Bracebridge's father "being a representative of the oldest family in the neighborhood, and a great part of the peasantry being his tenants—is much looked to and, in general, was known simply by the appellation of The Squire: a title which had been accorded to the head of the family since time immemorial."

As Irving and his friend came near the Hall the sound of music and dancing greeted them from the servant's end of the building "where a great deal of revelry was permitted."

So jorous was the mirth that young Bracebridge had to ring repeatedly before gaining entrance. As soon as they were announced the elder Squire came forward and greeted them warmly and they were ushered at once into the central hall and introduced to the company composed of different branches of the large family.

The evening was spent in games and songs, led by the droll Master Simon while the "old Squire (was) seated in his hereditary elbowchair, by the hospitable fireside of his ancestors and looking around him like the sun of a system, beaming warmth and gladness to every heart." The old Squire adhered to the custom of having his own minstrels and so music was soon had for the dancing.

Master Simon and the two other sons of the Squire, one an Oxonian, the other an officer, were the chief merry makers, especially with their dances and the bit of romance between the young officer and Julia, a pretty ward of the old gentleman.

At last the party broke up for the night, with the old custom of shaking hands and Irving was conducted to his chamber, in an antiquated part of the manor.

Irving was awakened the next morning, which was Christmas, by the sound of little feet pattering outside of the door and a whispering consultation. Presently a choir of small voices chanted forth an old Christmas carol, the burden of which was:

"Rejoice, our Saviour he was born On Christmas day in the morning."

He rose and dressed quickly and opening his door suddenly he beheld one of the most beautiful little fairy groups that a painter could imagine. It consisted of a boy and two girls, the eldest not more than six, and lovely as seraphs. They were going the rounds of the house singing at every chamber. Irving's sudden appearance frightened them into mute bashfulness. They remained for a moment playing on their lips with their fingers and now and then stealing a shy glance from under their eyebrows, until, as if by one impulse, they scampered away, and as they turned an angle of the gallery, he heard them laughing in triumph at their escape."

Irving was soon called by a servant to join the family in prayers, a service that was followed by the singing of carols. After the service breakfast was announced. A little later in the morning Irving went about the grounds but presently he heard the toll of the village bell which called the community to church.

It is to be remembered that some centuries ago the celebration of Christmas became so uproarious and bacchanalian that it lost its sacred aspect and with the advent of the Puritans in political power, Christmas as a holiday became taboo and remained until the restoration of Charles the Second. This period of history was fraught with political and religious controversy but in Irving's day the controversies were of the past and Christmas was in vogue. As a consequence Irving finds much amusement in the church service at Bracebridge Hall because the sermon wrangled over a question which had been settled over a century before.

"The parson," wrote Irving, "gave us a most erudite sermon on the rites and ceremonies of Christmas—supporting the correctness of his opinions by the earliest usages of the church and enforcing them by the authorities He kindled into warmth with the ardour of his contest, and the host of imaginary foes with whom he had to combat"

The parson further exhorted the congregation to celebrate Christmas in the traditional manner of their forefathers and to make merry. The congregation needed no further urging, for, as soon as the service was over, they promptly made merry with greetings and hand shaking, dancing and singing until time for the Christmas Dinner.

We of this day and age know nothing of the pompous, stately dinners of those days with courses of pig's head, peacock pie, turkey, plum pudding, roast beef, mince pie and above all the Wassail bowl of home brew. I also believe that we know less about the spontaneous madcap foolery and revelry which occurred during the dinner and on through the rest of the day and night. Master Simon in this instance engineered a Masque portraying "Ancient Christmas" which with beat of drums and the cutting of pi-rouettes and rigadoons was the "consummation" of uproar and merriment.

If we ourselves, cannot enjoy such similar Christmases we certainly can thank the shade of Washington Irving for his contribution to our enjoyment and appreciation of such celebrations in ages past.

Christmas Suggestions

Every Girl Will Like A Suit For Christmas

Yes, every girl, but especially the Miss who is just arriving at the suit age and has never had one. Make her first Suit a Christmas gift and select it from these attractive Winter styles. And undoubtedly the girl who has had other Suits but never one as smart as these being displayed, would enjoy having one very much.

You may have heard of the newest thing in Misses' Suits, consisting of Jacket and Jumper Dress, but you must see them to appreciate why we suggest them as gifts. $19.50 up.

Beautiful Frocks in New Modes

Any Frock chosen from our collection will more than delight the woman who wants a new afternoon gown for Christmas, and what woman doesn't hope for one? Those of silk velvet are really exquisite and interpret the straight silhouette most beautifully. Very effective are other Frocks of Canton crepe which frequently show one of the new blue or red shades, combined with black in striking fashion, and often further embellished with hand embroidery. Designed along tailored lines but extremely smart are Frocks of cashmere and kasha cloth favoring the more unusual colors. As you might expect, sleeves in novel styles, and hems interestingly irregular apply to these as to all modish creations. Priced $10.00 up.

Coats are Warm Gifts for Misses and Women

Father's or mother's gift to daughter might well be a new Coat, perhaps a little nicer than she would have if it weren't a Christmas gift. It's this "just a little nicer" air that distinguishes these Misses' Coats. You will notice first of all when you see them that many are fur trimmed with squirrel, beaver or krimmer; that the materials are very fine and the linings pretty too; and that the styles are what the young miss may call her very own. From $10.75 up.

Modish Blouses—In Holiday Array

Not only does "holiday array" apply to the attractiveness of our Blouse section, but to the Blouses themselves which seem to have caught the Christmas spirit. It may be just a few extra beads, a touch of very rich embroidery, a gayly colored panel which speaks of jollity—but whatever it is each Blouse boasts something additional as if in recognition of the happy part it is to play as a gift. Priced moderately.

ALLURING SILK UNDERWEAR

A Dainty Gift Cherished By Every Fastidious Woman

Deep in the heart of any really feminine woman, there lurks the hope that Christmas gift packages will contain silk Underwear. It's the cherished gift—one she will wear with a sigh of frill-satisfied femininity.

The colorings, dainty, flower-like, in soft pink, blue, orchid or maize, are not the least of the charm of these winsome garments.

And there's a practical side, too, for with just a little care, Silk Underwear launders and wears just as well as its nainsook relatives.

ATTRACTIVE GLOVE SILK VESTS AND KNICKERBOCKERS

Charming indeed are glove silk vests that are winsome in embroidered or lace designs—or silk knickerbockers in knee or ankle lengths. Vests are in flesh, cream or orchid shades and knickerbockers are in these and various suit shades.

Merry Christmas In The Tenements

It was just a sprig of holly, with scarlet berries showing against the green, stuck in by one of the office boys probably, behind the sign that pointed the way up to the editorial rooms. There was no reason why it should have made me start when I came suddenly upon it at the turn of the stairs; but it did. Perhaps it was because the dingy hall, given over to dust and druggist all the days of the year, was the last place in which I expected to meet with any sign of Christmas; perhaps it was because I myself had nearly forgotten the holiday. Whatever the cause, it gave me quite a turn.

I stood, and stared at it. It looked dry, almost withered. Probably it had come a long way. Not much holly grows about Printing House Square, except in the colored supplement, and that is scarcely of a kind to stir tender memories. Withered and dry, this did. I thought with a twinge of conscience, of secret little conclaves of my children, of private views of things hidden from mamma at the bottom of drawers, of wild fights when papa appeared unbidden in the door, which I had allowed for once to pass unheeded. Absorbed in the business of the office, I had hardly thought of Christmas coming on, until now it was here. And this sprig of holly on the wall that had come to remind me—come nobody knew how far—did it grow yet in the beechwood clearings, as it did when I gathered it as a boy, tracking through the snow? "Christ-thorn," we called it in our Danish tongue. The red berries, to our simple faith, were the drops of blood that fell from the Saviour's brow as it dropped under its cruel crown upon the cross.

The lights of the Bowery glow like a myriad twinkling stars upon the ceaseless flood of humanity that surges ever through the great highway of the homeless. They shine upon long rows of lodging-houses, in which hundreds of young men, cast helpless upon the reef of the strange city, are learning their first lessons of utter loneliness; for what desolation is there like that of the careless crowd when all the world rejects? They shine upon the tempter setting his snares there, and upon the missionary and the Salvation Army lass, disputing his catch with him; upon the police detective going his rounds with coldly observant eye intent upon the outcome of the contest; upon the wreck that is past hope, and upon the youth pausing on the verge of the pit in which the other has long ceased to struggle. Lights and sounds of Christmas there are in plenty in the Bowery. Balsam and hemlock and fir stand in rows along the busy thoroughfare, and garlands of green embower mission and dive impartially. Once a year the old street recalls its youth with an effort. It is true that it is largely a commercial effort, that the evergreen, with an instinct that is not of its native hills, haunts saloon-corners by preference; but the smell of the pine wood is in the air, and—Christmas is not too critical—one is grateful for the effort. It varies with the opportunity. At "Beefsteak John's" it is content with artistically embalming crullers and mince-pies in green cabbage under the window lamp. Over yonder, where the milepost of unnumbered old age becomes the vehicle of publishing the latest "sure cure," to the world—a florist, whose undenominational zeal for the holiday and trade outstrips alike distinction of creed and propriety, has transformed the sidewalk and the ugly railroad structure into a veritable bower, spanning it with a canopy of green, under which dwell with him, in neighborly good-will, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Jewish tailor next door.

A gayly decorated Christmas tree has taken the place of the pulpit. At its foot is stacked a mountain of bundles. Santa Claus's gifts to the school, a self-conscious young man with soap-locks, had just been allowed to retire, amid tumultuous applause, after blowing "Nearer, my God, to Thee" on his horn until his cheeks swelled almost to bursting. A trumpet ever takes the Fourth Ward by storm. A class of little girls is climbing upon the platform. Each wears a capital letter on her breast, and together they spell its lesson. There is momentary consternation; one is missing. As the discovery is made, a child pushes past the doorkeeper, hot and breathless. "I am in Boundless Love," she says and makes for the platform, where her arrival restores confidence and the language.

In the audience the befrosted visitor from up town sits cheek by jowl with the pigtailed Chinaman and the darkbrowed Italian. Up in the gallery, farthest from the preachers desk and the tree, sits a Jewish mother with three boys, almost in rags. A dingy and threadbare shawl partly hides her calico wrapper and the patched apron. The woman shrinks in the pew, fearful of being seen; her boys stand upon the benches, and applaud with the rest. She endeavors vainly to restore them. "Tuck, tuck," goes the old clock over the door through which wealth and fashion went out long years ago, and poverty came in.

Within the hail of the Sullivan street school camps a scattered little band, the Christmas customs of which I had been trying for years to surmise. They are Indians, a handful of Mohawks and Iroquois, whom some ill wind had blown down from their Canadian reservation, and left in these west side tenements to eke out such a living as they can, weaving mats and baskets, and threading glass pearls on slippers and pin cushions, until one after the other they have died off and gone to the happier hunting grounds than Thompson street. There were as many families, as one could count on the fingers of both hands when I first came upon them, at the death of old Tamenund, the basket maker. Last Christmas there were seven. I had about made up my mind that the only real Americans in New York did not keep the holiday at all, when one Christmas eve they showed me how. Just as dusk was setting in, old Mrs. Berolt, came from her Hudson street attic—where she was known among the neighbors, as old and poor as she, as Mrs. Ben Wah, and was believed to be the relic of a warrior of the name of Benjamin Wah—to the office of the Charity Organization Society, with a bundle for a friend who had helped her over a rough spot—the rent, I suppose. The bundle was done up elaborately in blue cheese cloth, and contained a lot of little garments which she had made out of the remnants of blankets and cloth of her own from a younger and better day. "For those," she said, in French patois, "who are poorer than myself," and hobbled away. I found out, a few days later, that she had scarcely food in the house that Christmas day and not the car fare to take her to church! Walking was bad, and her old limbs were stiff. She sat by the window through the winter evening and watched the sun go down behind the western hills, comforted by her pipe. Mrs. Ben Wah, to give her local name, is not really an Indian; but her husband was one, and she lived all her life with the tribe till she came here. She is a philosopher her own (way) quaint way. "It is no disgrace to be poor," she said to me, regarding her empty tobacco pouch; "but it is sometimes a great inconvenience." Not even the recollection of the vote of censure that was passed upon me once by the ladies of the Charitable Ten for surreptitiously supplying an aged couple, the special object of their charity, with army plug, could have deterred me from taking the hint.

In a hundred places all over the city, when Christmas comes as many open fairs spring suddenly into life. A kind of Gentile Feast of Tabernacle possessed the tenement districts especially. Green bowered booths stand in rows at the curb, and the voice of the tin trumpet is heard in the land. The common source of all the show is down by the North River, in the district known as "the Farm." Down there Santa Claus established headquarters early in December and until next New Year. The broad quay looks then more like a clearing in a pine forest than a busy section of the metropolis. The steamers discharge their loads of fir trees at the piers until they stand stacked mountain high, with foot hills of holly and ground ivy trailing off toward the land side. An army train of wagons is engaged in carting them away from early morning till late at night; but the green forest grows in spite of it all until in places it shuts the shipping out of sight altogether. The air is redolent with a smell of balsam and pine. After night fall when the lights are burning in the busy market, and the homeward bound crowd with baskets and heavy burdens of Christmas greens jostle one another with good natured banter, nobody is ever cross down here in the holiday season. It is good to take a stroll through the Farm, if one has a spot in his heart faithful yet to the hills and the woods in spite of the latter day city. But it is when the moonlight is upon the water and upon the dark, phantom forest, when the heavy breathing of some passing steamer is the only sound that breaks the stillness of the night, and the watchman smokes his only pipe on the bulwark that the Farm has a mood and an atmosphere all its own, full of poetry which someday a painter's brush will catch and hold.

Farthest down town, where the island narrows toward the Battery, and warehouses crowd, a few remaining tenements, the somber-hued colony of Syrians is astir with preparations for the holiday. Now comes it that in the only settlement of the real Christmas in New York the corner saloons appropriate to itself all the outward signs of it? Even the floral cross that is nailed over the door of Orthodox church is long withered and dead; it has been there since Easter, and it is yet twelve days to Christmas by the belated reckoning of the Greek church. But if the houses show no signs of the holiday, within there is nothing lacking. The whole colony is gone a-visiting. There are enough of the unorthodox to set the fashion, and the rest follow the custom of the country. The men go from house to house, laugh, shake hands, and kiss one another on both cheeks, with the salutation, "Kol am va antom Salimoon." "Every year and you are safe," the Syrian guide renders it into English; and the non-professional interpreter amends: "May you grow happier year by year." Arrack made from grapes and flavored with anise seed and candy baked in little balls like marbles are served with the indispensable cigarette; for long callers, the pipe.

The bells in old Trinity chime the midnight hour. From dark hallways men and women pour forth and hasten to the Maronite church. In the loft of the dingy old warehouse wax candles burn before an altar of brass. The priest, in a white robe with gold cross worked on the back, chants the ritual. The people respond. The women kneel in the aisles, shrouded in their heads in their shawls; a suppliant acolyte swings his censur; the heavy perfume of the burning incense fills the hall.

The band at the anarchists hall is tuning up for the last dance. Young and old float to the happy strains, forgetting injustice, oppression, hatred. Children slide upon the waxed floor weaving fearlessly in and out between couples-between fierce, bearded men and short haired women with crimson bordered kerchiefs. A Funch and Juby show in the corner evokes shouts of laughter.

Outside the snow is falling, it sifts silently into each nook and corner, softens all the hard and ugly lines, and throws the spotless mantle of Charity over the blemishes, the shortcomings Christmas morning will dawn pure and white.

Colonel Carter's Christmas Tree

Soon there stole over every one in the room that sense of peace and contentment which always comes when one is at least in an atmosphere where love and kindness reign. The soft light of the candles, the low, rich color of the simple room with its festoons of cedar and pine, the aroma of the rare wine, and especially the spicy smell of the hemlock warmed by the burning tapers—that rare, unmistakable smell which only Christmas greens give out and which few of us know but once a year, and often not then; all had their effect on host and guests. Katy became so happy that she lost all fear of her father and prattled on to Fitz and me (we had planned to her frock the rose the Colonel had bought for the "grown-up daughter," and she was wearing it just as Aunt Nancy wore hers), and Aunt Nancy in her gentle voice talked finance to Mr. Klutchem in a way that made him open his eyes, and Fitz laughingly joined in, giving a wide berth to anything bearing on "corners" or "combinations" or "shorts" and "longs," while I, to spare Aunt Nancy, kept one eye on Jim, winking at him with it once or twice when he was about to commit some foolishness, and so the happy feast went on.

As to the Colonel, he was never in better form. To him the occasion was the revival of the old Days of Plenty—the days his soul coveted and loved; his to enjoy, his to dispense.

But if it had been delightful before, what was it when Chad, after certain mysterious movements in the next room, bore aloft the chowning glory of the evening, and placed it with all its candles in the center of the table, the Colonel leaning far back in his chair to give him room, his coat thrown wide, his face aglow, his eyes sparkling with the laughter that always kept him young.

Then it was that the Colonel, gathering under his hand a little sheaf of paper lanterns, which Chad had twisted, rose from his seat, picked up a slender glass that had once served his father (only seven o' dat kind left," Chad told me) and which that faithful servant had just filled from the flow of the old decanter of like period, and with a wave of his hand as if to command attention, said, in a clear, firm voice that indicated the dignity of the occasion: "My friends—my very dear friends, I should say, for I can omit none of you—certainly not this little angel who has captured our hearts, and surely not our distinguished guest, Mr. Klutchem, who has honored us with his presence,—before I kindle with the torch of my love these little beacons which are to light each one of us on our way until another Christmas season overtakes us; before, I say, these sparks burst into life, I want you fill your glasses (Chad had done that to the brim—even little Katy's) and drink to the health and happiness of the lady on my right, whose presence is always a benediction and whose loyal affection is one of the sweetest treasures of my life!"

Everybody except the dear lady stood up—even little Katy—and Aunt Nancy's health was drunk amid her blushes, she remarking to Mr. Klutchem that George would always embarrass her with these too flattering speeches of his, which was literally true, this being the fourth time I had heard similar sentiments expressed in the dear lady's honor.

This formal toast over, the Colonel's whole manner changed. He was no longer the dignified host conducting the feast with measured grace. With a spring in his voice and a certain unrestrained joyousness, he called to Chad to bring him a light for his first lamp-lighter. Then, with the paper wisp balanced in his hand, he began counting the several candles, peeping into the branches with the manner of a boy.

"One-two-three-four, plenty of them, but we are going to begin with the top one. This is yours, Nancy—this little white one on the very tip-top. Gentlemen, this top candle is always reserved for Miss Carter, and the lighted taper kindled it into a blaze. 'Just like yo' eyes, my dear, burnin' steady, and warm in every body," and he tapped her hand caressingly with his fingers. "And now, where is that darlin' little Katy's—she must have a white one, too—here it is. Oh, what a brave little candle! Not a bit of sputterin' or smoke. See, dearie, what a beautiful blaze! May all your life be as bright and happy. And here is Mr. Klutchem's right alongside of Katy's—a fine, red one. There he goes, steady and clear and strong—And Fitz—dear old Fitz. Let's see what kind of a candle Fitz should have. Do you know, Fitz, if I had my way, I'd light the whole tree for you. One candle is absurd for Fitz! There, Fitz, it's off—another red one! All you millionaires must have red candles! And the Major! Oh, the Major!—he held out his hand to me—'Let's see—yaller? No, that will never do for you, Major. Pink? That's better. There now, see how fine you look and how evenly you burn—just like yo' love, my dear boy, that never fails me.'"

The circle of the table was now complete; each guest had a candle alight, and each owner was studying the several wicks as if the future could be read in their blaze: "Aunt Nancy with a certain seriousness. To her the custom was not new; the memories of her life were interwoven with many just such top candles,—one I knew of myself, that went out long, long ago, and has never been rekindled since.

The Colonel stopped, and for a moment he thought he was about to take his seat, although some wicks were still unlighted—his own among them.

Instantly a chorus of voices went up: "You have forgotten your own, Colonel—let me light one for you," etc. etc. Even little Katy had noticed the omission, and was pulling at his sleeve to call attention to the fact; the Colonel's candle was the only one she really cared for. "One minute," cried the Colonel. "That's enough, the absent ones first!"—and he stopped down and peered among the branches—"yes,—that's just the very one. This candle, Mr. Klutchem, is for our old Mammy Henry, who, is at Carter Hall, carin' for my property, and who must be pretty lonely today—ah, there you go Mammy!—blazin' away like one o' yo' own fires!"

Three candles now were all that were left unlighted; two of them side by side on the same branch, a brown one and a white one, and below these a yellow one standing all alone.

The Colonel selected a fresh taper, kindled it in the flame of Aunt Nancy's top candle, and turning to Chad, who was standing behind his chair, said—

"I'm goin' to put you, Chad, where you belong—right alongside of me. Here, Katy, darlin', take this taper and light this white candle for me, and I'll light the brown one for Chad," and he picked up another taper, lighted it, and handed it to the child.

"Now!"

As the two candles flashed into flame, the Colonel leaned over, and holding out his hand to the old servant—boys together, these two, said in a voice full of tenderness—

"Many years together, Chad—many years, old man."

Chad's face broke into a smile as he pressed the Colonel's hand.

"Thank be, marster," was all he trusted himself to say—a title the days of freedom had never robbed him of—and then he turned his head to hide the tears.

During the whole scene little Jim had stood on tiptoes, his eyes growing brighter and brighter as each candle flashed into a blaze. Up to the time of the lighting of the last guest candle his face had expressed nothing but increasing delight. When, however, Mammy Henry's candle, and then Chad's were kindled, I saw an expression of wonderment cross his features which gradually settled into one of profound disappointment.

But the Colonel had not yet taken his seat. He had relighted the taper—this time from Mammy Henry's candle—and stood with it in his hand, peering into the branches as if looking for something he had lost.

"Ah, here's another. O wonder—who—this little-yaller-candle-can-be-for," he said slowly, looking around the room and accentuating each word. I reckon they're all here. Let me see—Aunt Nancy, Mr. Klutchem, Katy, Fitz, the Major, Mammy Henry, Chad, and me. Yes—all here. Oh!—and he looked at the boy with a quizzical smile on his face—"I came very near forgettin'."

"This little yaller candle is Jim's," E. Hopkinson Smith in COLONEL CARTER'S CHRISTMAS.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction

THE ULTONA
Playing a Brunswick Record

THE TONE AMPLIFIER
With Grill Removed

"Certainly Better!"

People marvel daily at the Brunswick Method of Reproduction

THE Brunswick Method of Reproduction changes one's ideas of what a phonograph should be. This new method, although we picture above but two of its features, is a unified and scientific development of all that is best in reproducing and amplification.

Note that one feature is the Ultona, an all-record reproducer. This is an exclusive idea, giving to the Brunswick owner the whole realm of record music, unrestricted.

At a turn of the hand, the Ultona presents to each type of record the proper needle and the proper diaphragm. Each type of record is played exactly as intended, but with a finer reproducer—one that brings out hitherto hidden tonal values. No makeshift attachment is necessary.

Note another feature of the Brunswick Method of Reproduction—the Tone Amplifier. It is vastly different. The moulded wooden amplifying chamber is all wood and oval in shape. There is no cast-metal connection or throat.

This development is in accord with acoustic laws. Tone waves can vibrate properly.

If you seek the utmost in tone quality, then you must hear The Brunswick. You will appreciate the superiority at once.

Ask also to hear Brunswick Records—the latest popular "hits" and the finest operatic numbers. Brunswick Records can be played on any phonograph with steel or fibre needles.

Germany Is Ready To Assure France Peace

Edmund Von Thermann Says His Government Will Give Reasonable Guarantees

MILITARISM IS ABANDONED

Peacetime Production Is Usurping All Industries—Ludendorff Unpopular

By Carl D. Gross
(Copyright 1921 by United Press)
Washington—Germany is ready to give further guarantees to an international tribunal to ally France's fears of a new war from across the Rhine.

Freiherr Edmund von Thermann, here to open the German embassy and ultimately to become its counselor, expressed this as his belief Tuesday. Germany, desiring an undisturbed opportunity to work without recurrent threats of occupation in the Ruhr region and elsewhere, would make these guarantees in any suitable form, the rest of the world demands according to Thermann's view.

Won't Answer Briand
The new German representative—a young clean cut man of Saxon-Thuringian stock, bearing no dual cuts or other earmarks which the north German affects—made it clear he could not and would not answer Premier Briand's statement about Germany. His remarks, after long persistent questioning when he was asked if he agreed with the similar guarantee views of Herr Georg Bernhard, editor-in-chief of the Vossische Zeitung, Berlin.

KAISER'S PICTURE GOES INTO DISCARD

Washington—The Kaiser's picture at the German embassy has been scrapped.

Freiherr Edmund von Thermann, here to open the Teuton quarters, had it thrown into the discard with a lot of other symbols of the old regime. The embassy is being repainted and repapered after being closed for nearly five years.

"If the French people think it would be possible to avoid any danger of future war between France and Germany by giving guarantees, the German government is ready to do so," he said. "To give any further guarantees possible to any international tribunal as a sign of good faith and peaceful intentions."

Thermann said he wanted to avoid anything that might be taken as "German propaganda" in this country and specifically wanted to steer clear of a controversy with Briand.

Ludendorff Insists
"Tell me then how Germany regards Ludendorff, quite apart from any remarks Briand made about him?" the questioner asked.

"Ludendorff," Thermann replied, "has no influence upon the government or on the people. He scarcely dares go to Berlin, and because he sits in Bavaria writing books and has as supporters some of the old clique is no sign that he is a factor today."

Another German present at the talk interjected:

"Ludendorff never was a popular figure like Hindenburg, who was regarded as savior of Germany for turning back the Russians. As a matter of fact, Ludendorff was hated by officers and men. There is a military clique still existing but it has no real power."

Thermann illustrated this by remarking that the "Kapp Putsch" (to which Briand yesterday referred) had been put down in three days by a solid front of the German people in a national general strike.

"What about suggestions that German factories are making war materials?" Thermann was asked.

"Our factories have been converted into peacetime production, he said. "Krupps, for instance, are making railroad cars and locomotives, milk separators and other machinery. The allied supervision is sufficient guarantee that nothing is being made which shouldn't be."

As for disarmament, Thermann held that Germany is literally stripped of armament. The few rifles still hidden away would not help in a modern war, and extensive commission reports show that the bulk of guns, machine guns, rifles have long since been scrapped, he said.

ULSTER RULE PROTESTED BY NEW OUTBREAK

Virtual Reign of Terror Grips Belfast—Premier to Meet Craig

Belfast—A virtual reign of terror gripped Belfast Tuesday as the Ulster government assumed the powers of home rule.

Mobs attacked pedestrians, bullets whistled down the half deserted streets and armored lorries laden with heavy machine guns scurried about the districts where gangsters were fighting revolver duels.

Hidden on housetops and barricaded in dim doorways, snipers fired into the streets. In York street one was killed and several seriously injured.

London—Premier Lloyd George returned from Bournemouth to confer with his cabinet on the Irish situation Tuesday. He will meet Sir James Craig Wednesday, hoping to convince the Ulster leader of the necessity of a triangular conference between Sinn Fein, Ulster and Britain.

Can't Charm God Of Rain, Mentor Says

By United Press Leased Wire
Farco, N. D.—There is no known means of inducing rainfall, E. S. Kenne, dean of the North Dakota Agricultural college here said Tuesday. "Rainmakers" Charles M. Hatfield's methods are fraudulent and had no effect whatever on the rainfall last summer in the vicinity of Medicine Hat, Alberta, said Kenne. Official weather reports indicated Hatfield's efforts had the opposite effect from what was intended.

Average precipitation in the district was seven inches and less than 2.5 inches had fallen there in May, June and July for a series of dry years. "Hatfield had a good bet that four inches would fall," said Kenne. Hatfield received $5,500 from the United Agricultural association and was asked to come back next summer.

CONFESSION IS GOOD FOR SOUL OF FRENCHMEN

Briand Speech at Conference Expected to Build Moral Basis of Defense

LEAGUE MAY SOLVE PLIGHT

Large French Army Is Indication of Continued Reliance on Physical Force

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1921 by Post Pub. Co.
Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.—Premier Briand primarily addressed the people of France Monday and also continental Europe as he defended the military policy of France which three years after the armistice maintains the largest standing army in the world.

Only those who have followed the intricacies of French politics and know the maneuvers of the opposition elements in the French parliament which are seeking to overthrow the Briand ministry for not being even more vigorous in handling Germany can understand the true significance of the French premier's speech.

Secretary Hughes with characteristic definiteness referred to land armaments in a seemingly general way but managed to emphasize nevertheless without making invidious comparisons the fact that the United States which at the time of the armistice had an army of four million two hundred thousand men under arms now has reduced the regular army to 160,000 men.

The whole French speech was a defense of the French idea that at any moment an unprovoked aggression might develop on the German border. M. Briand went somewhat further than usual in drawing a distinction between the working classes of Germany which he thought were sincere desirous of peace and should be encouraged and the big business and military elements—like Ludendorff, who he thought were still unconquered in spirit and were thinking about a next war.

The French premier with all the oratorical arts for which French public officials are famous, made a deep impression but it cannot be said that the audience as a whole knew enough about the other side of the question—the facts about Germany—to form a balanced judgment. For months the stories from abroad have been, casting doubt about the power of Germany to make war for generations to come. The impression on the official mind here was hardly changed by the French premier's address.

Like many Americans feel that the standing army of France is only keeping alive the hatreds of war and the fires of possible conflict. But it is recognized that however Premier Briand himself may be willing to admit that there is merit in the idea of such a speech in its effect on the French parliament could be foreseen.

Exposure Helped
Premier Briand will be helped, they think, by his speech at Washington. It lays the French case before the whole world for it will be carried by wireless and telegraph to the four corners of the earth. As a publicity opportunity, it was worth more than dozens of effort through indirect channels. The expectation is that Premier Briand will be upheld in the chamber of deputies when he gets home and that Rene Viviani, who takes his place as the head of the French mission, can afford to pursue a middle of the road policy based, of course, on the instruction from Premier Briand when he is back in France and knows the limits to which he may go in considering land armament. If it is indeed taken up. The general feeling is that the whole subject will be side-stepped and possibly transferred to the League of Nations which is investigating it with a special commission headed by the same Rene Viviani who sits here as the official representative of France.

Accord Of Nations Speeds Conference

Finances Of China Are To Be Analyzed

Claims That Chinese Cannot Administer Their Government Because of Other Treaties Will Be Studied—Pact Is Sought.

Washington—An investigation of Chinese finances was started Tuesday by the arms limitation conference.

The Far East committee, meeting at the Pan-American Union building, adopted a resolution offered by Senator Underwood and the American delegation providing for the appointment of a subcommittee to make a study of the customs of China.

The customs question is one of the most tangled of the many difficult problems of China. It is assumed that the subcommittee will look into China's claims that she cannot raise sufficient revenue to run her government and take care of her obligations because of the provision of the treaties between China and other powers providing for a maximum of 5 per cent customs duty.

A resolution that the committee Tuesday decided to go into the question of Chinese revenues is but part of the plans of the American delegation for the conference to investigate thoroughly all serious problems of the Far East, as was exclusively forecast earlier Tuesday by the United Press.

It was decided Tuesday that there will be a meeting Wednesday morning of the full committee on limitation of armament and another meeting in the afternoon of the Far East committee.

The United States will ask the signatures of the powers to a definite understanding regarding Far Eastern and Pacific questions. This may be in the form of a treaty of simply an agreement, but in any event, it is to be put in binding form.

A resolution adopted late Monday by the conference, sitting as a committee on Far Eastern and Pacific questions, is to form the basis for the agreement. This resolution, proposed by Elihu Root of the American delegation, relates specifically to China.

The American delegation, ignoring or opposing Japan's reservation on this point, intends to take up and settle the question respecting China and the Far East generally which has been recognized as a cause of international discord, in order to remove a source of war in that part of the world.

DOG DERBY HERO RUNS LAST RACE

Walter Goynne's Trail Shows He Broke Through Thin Ice and Was Drowned

By United Press Leased Wire
The Pas, Manitoba—Walter Goynne has driven his last race.

Out on Moose lake, 80 miles from the Pas, his trail ends.

The "going" kid Alaska, winner of the famous 1920 Canadian dog derby and hero of a number of other long mushes, went through thin ice with his champion team of nine dogs a week ago.

Goynne left Duluth trading post Nov. 12 for a fishing camp 26 miles away to secure fish for his dogs. Eleven pups followed him. Two days later the pups returned to the post. The people, alarmed, followed his trail 18 miles. At this point on the lake the trail ended.

Apparently Goynne went down with his heavy sleigh and nine champion dogs. There was no sign that any escaped. It will be impossible to locate his body until the spring throws, natives said.

SEEK CHILD KIDNAPED BY HUNCH-BACK CYCLIST

Chicago—Helen Kirwan, five, kidnapped by a hunch-back on a bicycle 24 hours ago was still missing Tuesday. Several posers have searched incessantly for the little school girl.

Parents believe she met death at the hands of her captor.

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Say it with lilacs. Reformers issued this command Tuesday when plans were laid for a national Purity day.

"Protest against the merry whirl of the world is the idea back of the new day to be marked on the calendar."

On Purity day all persons who resolve to walk the straight and narrow boulevard will wear a lily in their lapel.

"The day is set aside to give us more Heaven and less Hell on earth," said Arthur Burrage Farrell, nationally known vice crusader and the father of the idea.

Farrell is in communication with reformers in other cities. The date for wearing lilacs, which is to be on Sunday when people neither toil nor spin, is to be set soon.

"It is unfortunate that we have to set a day aside for right thinking and right living, but it is necessary, nevertheless," said Farrell. Every day should be a Purity day with all persons, but it isn't.

"The day will be one of service. Persons will not only be asked to get themselves in tune with the pure but also aid others."

Chicago florists denied that the idea was fostered by them as a propaganda for selling flowers.

"We don't expect many cash customers," they said.

AGREEMENTS EXPECTED SOON ON MAJOR TASKS

Washington—The arms conference Tuesday was working speedily toward agreements on two of its major tasks—limitation of naval armaments and an untangling of the intricate Far Eastern problem.

As to the third major task—limitation of land armament—the impression prevailed little action regarding it would be taken at this time.

It was apparent that the American government is first driving toward definite agreements on naval armaments and Far Eastern questions.

Germany, through Edmund von Thermann, her new charge d'affaires here, denied Premier Briand's charge that the nation is a great potential war machine and stated she is willing to give "further guarantees to an international tribunal" to allay France's fears of a new war across the Rhine.

Briand was confident he had achieved the purpose of his trip to America—to rally the support of the world to France. France's army cut will be a real one, despite dangers confronting her, he said.

Before the conference completes its settlement of Far Eastern affairs, the United States will ask the nations involved to sign a definite agreement or treaty embodying in detail the principles approved. This probably will be drawn up by Elihu Root.

Senators Hurl Mud In Newberry Mixup

Bitter Epithets Flung by Penrose and Hefflin at Each Other—Are Ordered Expunged From Records by Senator Lenroot.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—"Disorderly" scenes Tuesday marked the controversy in the senate over whether Senator Newberry, Michigan, should retain his seat in the senate.

A bitter verbal clash between Senators Penrose and Hefflin amid wild disorder ended with an official rebuke to both and the expunging of their remarks from the congressional record.

Hefflin had charged Penrose with representing the "predatory interests" and Penrose retaliated by remarking that "considering the black darkness of Alabama which he represents, nothing else could be expected from the senator from Alabama."

A demand that the whole wrangle be expunged from the record was made by Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin. Without a dissenting vote this action was taken.

The row started when Hefflin remarked that Republican senators were "running to the cloakrooms to escape hearing his arraignment of Newberry."

In view of the nature of the remarks of the senator from Alabama, interposed Penrose. "I am not surprised that one would want to hear his speech."

"I am not surprised to hear such a remark from the senator from Pennsylvania," retorted Hefflin. "Everybody knows that but for the millions back of him he would not have a seat in this body."

"He is known as the 'big boss' of Pennsylvania and no man in Pennsylvania can get a seat in this body unless he gets the O. K. of Penrose."

Declaring that the Michigan campaign between Henry Ford and Newberry was "the most scandalous primary in history," Hefflin challenged Newberry to take the floor and explain the use of nearly $200,000.

"If Newberry does not make an honest confession," he said, "he will be branded before the country as an ass and a liar."

TRIAL OF BURCH IS ORDERED TO START

Attorneys for Madalynne Obenchain Trying to Obtain Her Trial First

By United Press Leased Wire
Los Angeles—An eleventh hour attempt of defense attorneys for Arthur C. Burch to secure further delay, his trial for alleged participation in the midnight murder of John Edton Kennedy failed Tuesday.

Judge Sidney N. Reeve ruled that Burch must go to trial Tuesday as originally calendared.

Despite the fact that Burch was slated for trial first in connection with the tragedy a Beverly Glen, wherein wealthy young John Edton Kennedy was shot to death from ambush while in company of Madalynne Obenchain, his sweetheart, it was Madalynne's attorneys who were on their feet first Tuesday.

LeCompte Davis, acting chief counsel for the beautiful divorced wife of "Sir Ralph" Obenchain, addressed the court in an impassioned plea that Madalynne be granted trial before Burch.

Milwaukee—One fireman was injured and ten were overcome by smoke in fighting a fire which swept the Milwaukee Sanitary Wiping Cloth company building here Monday night, causing damage which may exceed $50,000.

The fire started in the basement and the flames spread quickly when quantities of dry rags used to manufacture wiping cloths supplied ready fuel.

Firemen early Tuesday morning were still pouring streams of water on the smoldering ruins.

Big Problems All Are Before Men Of Parley

Clarifying of Diplomatic Air and Molding of World Opinions Along Lines of Peace Give Assurance of Rapid Progress.

By Lawrence Martin
Washington—The arms limitation conference Tuesday had definitely passed through the period of mere talk into the phase of actual accomplishment.

A complete agreement on the major details of America's sweeping program for limitation of naval armament appeared to be near, following the acceptance by all the powers of four principles suggested by the United States as the basis of any Far Eastern settlement. Only on limitation of land armament a definite agreement seemed doubtful.

From now on, the process of "getting together" is expected to proceed uninterruptedly, an American official told the United Press Tuesday.

Progress Satisfactory
"We have made definite and most satisfying progress on everything," he said. "We are most optimistic that we shall from now on make progress even more rapidly, because the conferences thus far have produced an atmosphere of accord and understanding that is most happy, and potential to our success."

With the three questions which form the agenda actually before the conference, the situation is: Far Eastern Questions.

The committee on Far Eastern and Pacific questions has reached a basis of agreement regarding China, through adoption of a resolution proposed by Elihu Root of the American delegation. This resolution was unanimously agreed to by the eight powers represented. It put the conference on record as reaffirming the "open door" policy of protection to China's integrity as a nation; promising to aid China in establishing a stable government, and refraining from taking advantage of present conditions to obtain special privileges in China. The Far East committee met again Tuesday morning to continue its work.

Naval arms limitation:
Distinct progress towards agreement on the basis of the American proposals for a ten year naval holiday in capital ship construction has been made by conferences on the "big three," Hughes, Balfour and Kato. It was indicated that the negotiations of the United States, Great Britain and Japan have been "still further clarified, and that early agreement upon which Secretary Hughes called 'the cardinal point' of the American program might be in prospect."

Land armament:
This question had virtually been disposed of Tuesday. Premier Briand's speech to the conference Monday and the responses on behalf of other nations made it clear that all accepted the principle that land armaments should be reduced to the lowest point compatible with national security. Inasmuch as it constitutes national security is a question to be determined by each nation for itself, the conference, it was clearly indicated, is likely to do little more than pledge its members in some formal way to bring about the maximum possible reduction in good faith and in keeping with the spirit of the conference.

France's proposed reduction by amendment of the conscription law was expected to amount to at least 125,000 men, and pledges by Great Britain and the United States that France would not be left isolated in the event of future unprovoked aggression were looked upon by some observers as promising basis for discussion with France for further reductions.

Tobacco Chewing Habit Is Nearly Extinct Here

Dealers Report Big Decrease in Demand for Chewing Tobacco

The days of plug chewing tobacco are numbered. In fact all kinds of chewing tobacco, are on their last legs, according to statements by leading tobacco dealers of Appleton. The sale of plug tobacco has been on the decline for the last five or six years but more than ever since the war. The younger generation seems to be more addicted to the smoking of cigarettes than to the old time habit of chewing tobacco. A few years ago the youngsters did not feel they were "men" until they could chew the standard brands of tobacco along with the "old timers" but times have changed and with them the chewing tobacco. Local dealers are unable to explain the sudden and steady decline of plug sales. Some hold that the appearance of "tailor made" cigarettes was the chief cause of the decline while others state that an inferior grade was thrown upon the market which caused those who had been Appleton's increase over last year was 4 per cent," said William N. Kimball, local manager of the American Railway Express company. "This indicates that business is at least 4 per cent better than it was at this time last year and that industries are picking up. We expect to raise the rate of increase considerably by January 1. All of the shipments in and out of Appleton are of a better class of merchandise and all bona tobacco chewers for a long time, to dispense with the habit and to take up a different mode of paying homage to the Lady Nicotine.

"A few years ago I used to order chewing tobacco in large quantities in from 30 to 40 pound or box orders, but now we stock up with a few dozen packages, just enough to supply the declining demand and to prevent us from having overly aged chewing tobacco on our shelves," said F. N. Rachman, local tobacco dealer. "I find that only the older men buy the chewing tobacco, and long cut and cigar clippings seems to be their choice rather than the once popular plug. A few years ago people would buy chewing tobacco in one pound and one half pound packages, now the only size they want is the small 10-cent package."

"A few years ago more than 25 different brands of plug cut chewing tobacco were on the market and all of them flourished while now only five brands have any sale at all. These five are the favorites of the old timers but they also have decreased in popularity and sales." "The sale of plug chewing tobacco has steadily decreased since the beginning of the war and is now at a standstill," declared John Stulp, west College-ave. tobacco dealer. "I can attribute the decrease in sales and the steady decline in popularity to only one thing and that is the inferior grade of tobacco put on the market during the war. A Russian licorice was used in flavoring the plug up to the time of the war but when this ade orders. There are no cancellations and all goods shipped out are already sold," declared Kimball.

Appleton is now getting 24-hour express service from New York, according to Mr. Kimball. An express train leaves New York at 9:40 every evening, arriving in Appleton 24 hours later. Appleton now has six Chicago express trains daily which is the best service that any city in this part of the state can boast of.

could no longer be had an inferior grade of licorice was substituted which in turn made the plug very poor and caused the trade to seek some other form of tobacco. The manufacturers also made the plug too sweet with the flavor substitutions and which also caused tobacco chewers to either take to the long cut or take to the smoking of pipes or cigars. The trade has picked up a little since the Russian licorice has been available and is used to favor the plugs, but in my mind the tobacco chewing habit is dead," said Mr. Stulp.

James W. Fisk to Be Guest of Advertising Club at Banquet

With the co-operation of the merchants division of the chamber of commerce, James W. Fisk, head of the retail department of Schuster department stores of Milwaukee, will address the salesmanship lecture course Wednesday evening at the vocational school.

Mr. Fisk is well versed in his subject on selling and advertising, having been connected with the Pettibone-Penbody store of this city, Associated Advertising clubs of the World and the Dry Goods Economist of New York. He has prepared courses on retail selling and salesmanship which are now used by many large department stores.

The Appleton Advertising club will give a banquet for Mr. Fisk at the Sherman house Wednesday evening prior to his lecture.

Plans are being formulated for advertising of the Fox river valley. The concrete highways which lead to every direction from Appleton, splendid farm lands together with the beautiful lakes and streams furnish an endless amount of material from which the Fox river publicity movement can be carried on with success.

It is the intention of the local advertising club to keep before the people of the state the many advantages this locality has and will carry its work to the national convention of advertising clubs to be held in Milwaukee in June. The convention will attract people from all over the United States.

We have put forth every effort possible in our Poultry Selections and are very sure there is nothing in the Fox River Valley that will in any way compare with our display of Prime Milk-fed Turkeys, Geese, Ducks, and Chickens. The weather last week caused a lot of Poultry to be sold on the Milwaukee market, at a very low price, and a great deal of that kind of Poultry has been shipped to the cities in this Valley and will be sold in competition with the Fancy Fresh Killed Stock. We want you to make your own comparisons and ask that you see our stock before making your selection. We are LEADERS IN PRICE REDUCTIONS in this Valley, but we positively WILL NOT SACRIFICE QUALITY TO PRICE.

A UNION DEPOT FOR APPLETON

The plan of Alderman Laabs to reorganize rail entrances into Appleton, eliminate grade crossings and ultimately secure a union station is one which should engage the serious attention of the people and of the authorities. It may look like a large undertaking, and so far as it affects public policy it is of large consequence, but from an engineering and operating standpoint it is a simple proposal and easily carried out. We may expect the railroads will not be sympathetic to the plan. Consolidation of stations is curiously enough a matter which they generally oppose, presumably because of initial cost. However, the fact remains that a union station in Appleton, as in most cities with a number of railroad lines, would be economical and in the long run the improvement would pay for itself.

We should not forget that the city has quite as much rights in the premise as the railroads, and that a union station and the other improvements advocated by Alderman Laabs would be of great benefit to the public in the way of convenience and safety. Furthermore, the longer we wait for the change the harder it will be to bring it about. Every year will present new obstacles in the shape of public and private improvements that stand in the way of some phase of the plan. The time to begin to work for this greatly needed project is now. If the council, the Chamber of Commerce and the people will put their shoulders to the wheel and keep constantly at it, results will come in due time. We should make a union station and track depression one of the major planks in our platform in Appleton.

THE RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The Red Cross roll call ought to include the name of every citizen who has employment and who cares for his fellow-men. The people have come to associate the Red Cross so conspicuously with "war and its red woes," or with the ravages of famine, fire, flood, hurricane, earthquake or other extraordinary violence of man or nature, that they do not appreciate to what other calls less noisy, or dramatic it makes response. It hears especially the "small voice" of children in physical need of every sort. It hears the uncomplaining voices of the jobless soldiers, for many of whom in the city it has found places. It has heard the voices of those suffering from sickness and disease, to 1,144,682 of whom throughout the United States it has brought relief, and it has been especially responsive to the veterans—this service alone having cost $10,000,000 during the past twelve months.

Every one who gives a dollar will know that he or she is responding to some, at least, of the myriad, small voices of need that are not audible to the public amid the rush and tumult of our daily lives. A recent statistical survey of the charitable expenditures of a neighboring city showed that only two and a half per cent of the population contributed to the support of its social agencies. Here is an opportunity for all citizens in Appleton to enroll or register their names as citizens in this national organization of mercy beneath that of the president of the United States, whose "name leads all the rest." The polls are open wherever there is a Red Cross worker with a registration blank. Have you enrolled?

JOURNALISTIC METHODS IN JAPAN

Correspondents of one of the most alert and up to date Japanese newspapers spent $2400 to transmit a 400-word message comprising the fundamental features of the Hughes disarmament proposal across the Pacific ocean. The message was forwarded to Japan both by cable and wireless, and at the highest rate, "urgent commercial." The reason for sending the news by cable and wireless and at the highest rate was to secure a "scoop." The Asahi has six correspondents in Washington, covering the Arms conference, and they are competing with about forty-five reporters of rival Japanese newspapers. It is stated that the correspondents waited anxiously for word from the editor-in-chief, and when at last they received a very brief message of congratulations, they cheered in glee.

This feat was typically American, and it shows the facility with which the Japanese adapt themselves to modern practices. They elect the best ideas that they come across, and then try to improve them. The newspapers seem to be the greatest modern force in Japan. Emulating American and British policies and methods they are instilling new ideas into the nation. In fact, the press is tending to democratize Japan, and it probably will not be many years before it will be hard to tell the difference between Japanese and American and British public opinion.

OUR CITIZENS SHOULD COOPERATE

The senior class of the High school will have its first lesson in applied social economy tomorrow when it conducts its Thanksgiving auction, and later when it uses the proceeds of this sale in the filling of Thanksgiving and perhaps Christmas baskets, and in other phases of relief work. The proceeds from last year's auction were more than $600 and this year it is the ambition of the students to raise $1000.

For every dollar that is spent at this auction the purchasers will receive full value, so that it is not in any sense a contribution by the public. The real contribution will be made by the seniors when they spread good cheer and assistance among the unfortunate but meritorious citizens of Appleton. Every member of the class is serving on a committee to make the sale a success, with the teachers as overseers.

The senior class acts in conjunction with the Red Cross and other charitable associations of the city, so that no duplications will be made. An investigation committee will see that only deserving families are the recipients of baskets. Last year twenty-five baskets, each containing food worth $15 or more, were distributed. Other baskets were sent out at Christmas time, and in addition the class also paid for several operations, medical attention and school books for students who could not afford them. It is hoped this year to extend these activities to cover a wider field.

This activity is helpful alike to the High school students, and to those who receive its direct benefits. It cultivates among the students broader sympathies, humanitarian ideals and moral earnestness. It better fits them for the responsibilities they are about to assume as citizens and in their social relations. It is one of the means of enabling the community to discharge its obligation to those who need encouragement, and few of us are exempt from this dependence at one time or another during life. It is a work in which the city of Appleton may take pride, and we trust therefore that our citizens will cooperate with the senior class to make this year's auction the success to which the students aspire.

The Cynic Out of Place

Somewhere, remote from the cynicism of G. B. Shaw and the mournfulness of H. G. Wells, to say nothing of the levity of Ring Lardner, the average man takes up his position with respect to the conference now in progress at Washington. The jester, so long as his intentions are good, probably will cause no harm; even the weary sadness of those who wish, but cannot help, to see the world on some grounds; but there is no place in the public press at this time, in our opinion, for the writer who has only sneers and satire for the whole affair. There is no place at Washington just now for the cynic, no occasion or justification for bringing up all of the ghosts of the past as a means of discrediting some or all of the nations that are represented in this great project. The powers engaged in this effort to lighten the burdens of excessive armaments and lessen the chances of war are entitled to benefit of every doubt, at least until they demonstrate their unworthiness of that confidence. To say that they have already given that demonstration is not a pertinent answer. The purpose and hope of this conference is to lay the groundwork for a new deal, not to thresh out the merits of ancient quarrels or the excuses for ancient wrongs.—WILMINGTON (N. C.) STAR (Dem.)

The Endurance of Fame

A giant candle that will be lighted twenty-four hours a year for eighteen hundred years is made in New York as a memorial to Caruso of the heavenly voice. This candle will be set up permanently in the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii, at Naples, Italy. It would be interesting, to come back to earth in the year 3721, when the giant candle is lit for the last time, and find out whether any one will be able to tell who Caruso was, without consulting dusty records. Caruso was a great man, but eighteen hundred years is a long time. Alexander the Great conquered the earth twenty-two hundred years ago. But now he is not as famous as the leader of Alexander's Ragtime Band.—BUFFALO TIMES (Ind. Dem.)

Perhaps the public should not make the mistake of expecting too much from the disarmament conference, but the conference should not make the mistake of expecting too little from the public—if it thinks.—ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH.

QUININE FALLACIES

A correspondent asks whether quinine ever induces insanity, and mentions the case of a relative who "claimed to be a sufferer from malaria and always had quinine with him, which he took in considerable quantities."

In general practice nowadays when a patient speaks of having been taking some quinine the doctor never knows what the patient means. A great many dangerous nostrums which contain a little quinine that you can scarcely detect it—except on the label—depend for their ear-ringing and ache-benumbing effect upon acetanilide. Acetanilide taken "in considerable quantities" as a habit, unquestionably does induce mental deterioration and brings many a victim to the hospital for the insane.

There is so very little good sound basis for the ancient theory that real quinine was good for so-called "colds" or for so-called "grippe," that an acute scholar is not to take any of the stuff for such purposes myself.

Enough quinine will not only make the ears buzz (by producing congestion of the delicate apparatus of hearing) but will produce sweating. Perhaps the sweating accounts for the old fancy that quinine is good for alleged "colds" and "grippe." Acetanilide, the heart-depressing, blood-cell-destroying, death-dealing pain-killer, will likewise produce buzzing of the ears and sweating. It is the acetanilide in the average alleged "cold cure" or "grippe cure" that produces these very questionable effects, and not the quinine.

Personally, I'd take my chances with anything that masquerades under the name of a "cold" or the "grippe" sooner than subject my heart and blood at such a time to the damaging influence of acetanilide, or any of the other coal tar pain-killers in the same category, such as phenacetin, antipyrin, aspirin and the like. Abuse of such remedies, when they were first introduced with the unadvised certainty assurance of harmlessness, has been cited by many excellent physicians as an important cause of the "nervous prostration" and the neuroticism that followed in the wake of the great influenza epidemics of a generation ago.

Quinine is still the most effective antidote we have against the malaria parasite, provided it is intelligently employed, which means, first, that the diagnosis of malaria rests upon discovery of the parasites in the fresh food examination, and second, that treatment is administered according to the physician's direction and not by self-medication.

A few individuals have an "idiosyncrasy" for quinine, that is, they suffer very unpleasant or alarming effects from even the smallest dose. Why, we do not know.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Recovery from Dyspepsia

Are there any instances on record where a person recovered from dyspepsia after having it for many years?—(F. M. W.)

Answer.—My friend, dyspepsia isn't a condition, but a theory. Any disorder, from whatever disease or disturbance, felt between the chin and the level of the hips is facetiously called dyspepsia by the doctor to fool the patient or by the patient to fool himself.

Football and the Growing Boy

I am 16 years old, five feet and 10 inches tall, and weigh 132 pounds. I play football on our high school team. But after practice or a period of play I have a good deal of pain in my thigh and back muscles and they seem to grow stiff and heavy. I massage with witch hazel. That relieves only a little. What would you advise me to do?—(Half-back).

Answer.—Football is a man's game. It is entirely too strenuous for fast growing boys. You need all your spare energy to grow on, and I advise you to keep out of football until you are more mature. Your heart is the muscle that is likely to suffer more serious injury than any other muscle if you attempt to play a man's game while you are still just a boy. Every high school boy ought to engage actively in one or another branch of athletics, and every high school girl should, too. But high school football is a mistake from the point of view of physical well being.

Foods That Contain Vitamins

Kindly name some foods that contain a good quantity of vitamins, as I want to build up my general health.—(H. C.)

Answer.—Unless your rations or dietary has been restricted in some way, your ordinary food will have probably had all the vitamins health requires. All foods furnish all the vitamins necessary: Raw cabbage (sals, cold slaw), cooked liver, whole wheat (as it comes from the threshing machine), wheat bran, lettuce, spinach, raw potato, cooked potato, carrots, bananas, nuts, butter, fresh milk, cream, cheese, beef fat, mutton fat, orange juice, tomato juice, skim milk, eggs, onions, celery tops, beet greens, cucumbers, beans, fresh green peas, kidney, sweetbread, brain, giblets.

Too Expensive To Fight

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C.—The next world war, if it takes place, will probably be won by the strongest nation which succeeds in staying out of it.

This consideration, which is based upon the calculations of military experts concerning future wars, as well as upon the obvious lessons of the one just over, is undoubtedly a powerful force making for disarmament.

It is probable that each of the principal nations, in the next few decades, will strive for the elimination of armament and the adjustment of international relations in such a way that its own liability to be embroiled in war will be reduced to a minimum.

It does not follow that this will always make for international peace. It probably will do so in a general way, but it means that while each nation will itself strive to keep out of war, it will often be of advantage to a given nation to embroil its chief commercial rivals in a war.

For example, some observers have commented upon the fact that certain sections of the French press dwell a great deal upon the points which may produce antagonism between Great Britain and the United States. It has been pointed out that should the United States and Great Britain ever engage in a war without France being involved in any way at the end of that war France would occupy a much stronger international position than she does now. It has been suggested that the French government may not be wholly oblivious to this fact.

Whether it has any influence on French policy or not it illustrates the point under consideration.

The Case of England

Another illustration has been brought to light by discussion of the Anglo-Jap alliance. Whether this alliance shall be renewed or not is one of the crucial questions of the conference. In the canvass of considerations which probably affect British policy in this regard, it has been pointed out, as a reason why Britain might wish to discontinue the alliance, that in case of war between Japan and the United States, Great Britain could win that war by staying out of it. It is stated that if Japan and the United States fought for four years during that time Great Britain would regain the position of controlling financial center of the world which has now passed to the United States, and would also greatly increase her commerce. She would do this by selling goods and lending money to the belligerents, who would constantly weaken each other.

Of course, Great Britain could gain only by staying out of such a war. The United States would lose international leadership by such a war, in all probability, even if she won a victory.

The same factors appear in all calculations that are made concerning possible future wars. There are nations which might gain by successful war in certain circumstances, and these are noted to be the least enthusiastic for disarmament. But, in general, war no longer pays as a commercial adventure.

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic quarrels or to conduct other than research on any subject. Q. How do they know that the Unknown Soldier buried in Arlington is an American? D. E. P.

A. The War Department says that the body of the unknown was taken from an American cemetery, from one of a number of selected graves of unknown soldiers, all of whom were gathered from battle positions occupied by American troops or from American hospitals, all of whom were attired in uniforms and underclothes issued to American troops, and all of whose possessions were decidedly American.

Q. Is the United States going to have a building at the International Exposition in Brazil next year? E. D. A.

A. The United States will take part in this exposition at Rio de Janeiro and $1,000,000 has been appropriated for the erection of a building to house exhibitions of the various government departments.

Q. Where is sea level reckoned from? H. L. S.

A. Mean sea level is the average height of the water, all stages of the tide being considered.

Q. Is this a good time to invest money in the Philippines? V. K. I.

A. Governor-General Wood says that American investments in the islands are secure, that conditions of public order are excellent throughout the Archipelago and that there is a keen desire for investment of foreign capital.

Q. Should potatoes be cooked in salted or unsalted water? F. W. H.

A. Potatoes should be put on to cook in salted, boiling water. Salt added at the beginning of the cooking reduces the loss of mineral matter about one-third.

Q. Why do we have an "in" in liquor instead of "vin" since liquid is spelled with an "v"? M. S. E.

A. Liquor is derived from liquor: liquors, Latin words meaning to be liquid, and to make. Liquid is derived from liquidus (liquer liquore), the Latin word meaning to be fluid.

To Women whose Husbands Kick

A man often feels that the Constitution gave him the right to complain—in the pursuit of happiness.

If your husband takes it out on his shirts, rob him of his arguments by buying him an Eagle Shirt.

You'll like it yourself. You (who know fabric) will like the look and "feel" of the closely woven cloth; you (who know sewing) will appreciate the fineness and strength of the double stitching at the seams, the likelihood of not having to replace the firmly sewn buttons.

Your husband will like the easy cut, the extra length that keeps the shirt anchored, the six-button front that won't gap. He'll say, "Buy me some more Eagle Shirts," and looking at the fabric name will give you that clue too for future purchases.

Buy Eagle Shirts by the fabric name in the label.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

The Idealism of Mr. Harding

The address President Harding made over the tomb of America's unknown soldier, on Armistice Day is acclaimed by the entire press of the nation as the voice of America, expressed "in language simply beautiful and profoundly soul-stirring," to quote the TACOMA (Wash.) LEDGER (Ind.). In the chorus of praise, however, it is of marked interest to note the comments of that portion of the American press which has been most loyal to the doctrines and the policies of Woodrow Wilson. For they constitute, perhaps, the greatest tribute to the deeper significance which lies beneath the mere rhetoric of the President's speech.

"Between Woodrow Wilson and Warren G. Harding there is a great gulf fixed," says the PHILADELPHIA RECORD (Ind. Dem.), "dividing them in their beliefs as to the means to be employed to the attainment of a common end; but the goal for which one has striven and the other is striving is obviously the same. When Wilson put into his life work the same passionate appeal to humanity and reason that President Harding employed at Arlington, America, sympathizing with his aim but distrustful of the path he chose to reach it, refused to follow his leadership. If the new President's path tends in the same direction, and can bring him to the cherished objective, in God's name let us take it."

It is, indeed, in its evidence of the regeneration of "an idealism which it had been feared was dead," as the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.) expresses it, that the President's address makes the strongest appeal to these writers. "The fact that Mr. Harding delivered the best speech of his life because he permitted himself to be an idealist," the RICHMOND NEWS LEADER (Ind. Dem.) finds "interesting," but "not nearly so significant as the fact when he sought to set the pitch of the conference, he sounded not the note of national interest or of economic advantages, but the note of idealism drowned for the last two years in the dissonance of politics." The enthusiasm with which the speech was received is strong proof to the Richmond paper that "idealism is not dead, and more than the sun is, it merely has been hidden by the clouds of selfishness." In consequence, the BUTTE (Mont.) MINER (Dem.) believes that "those who were so directly disappointed that the prayer for advancement of the world as a result of the sacrifices of the war had turned into an era of world retrogression" will again "feel a stirring of their pulses as they peruse Mr. Harding's lofty sentiments," for although he was elected "because he was supposed to be an ultra materialist so far as worldly politics go," yet at Arlington "he gave utterance to one of the most idealistic addresses ever delivered by an executive of this nation."

But with all its idealism and its appeal to the emotions," the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS (Ind.) continues, "there is sound reason in every sentence," and if it was "oratory," the BUTTE POST (Rep.) finds it none the less "a successful oratory," for "it was a timely appeal by the President to his fellow citizens and to the world to stand forth in steadfast support of the declaration that war must cease."

It was also, the RALPHORE SUN (Ind. Dem.) adds, "the expression of the hope which is now the dominant hope of mankind."

The address is "notable," as well, the SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN (Ind.) says, for its picture and its denunciation of modern warfare, and the conclusion that "it is no longer a conflict in chivalry; no more a test of militant manhood; it is only cruel, deliberate, scientific destruction."

"The nation will echo his declaration that only the defense of 'freedom itself and inviolate honor' could justify a plunge into the intensified horrors which another war would entail."

There can be "no assurance that there will be no more war, but 'hearing the President's words, the RICHMOND TIMES DISPATCH (Dem.) feels "assured that he will do his part in solving this greatest of all the problems of the ages," and it urges "a loyal nation" to stand "united and earnestly back of him." Certainly "no President ever made a more earnest declaration of war against war," says the PITTSBURGH PRESS (Ind.), and he is "fully aware of the practical difficulties" in the way of fulfillment.

What these difficulties involve is touched on by the President, the BALTIMORE AMERICAN (Rep.) believes, when he expresses the faith that "surely no one in authority, with human attributes and a full appraisal of the patriotic loyalty of his countrymen, could ask the manhood of kingdom, empire or republic to make such sacrifices."

"until every effort of love and consideration for fellow-men had been exhausted," for the AMERICAN asks, will such authorities really "so conduct themselves that they will, indeed, hearken genuinely to justice, to love and consideration for their fellow men? Will they really go to the brink of honor itself before calling the task impossible? It is not 'a question of how people feel about it,' for the SPRINGFIELD UNION (Rep.) thinks 'there is no doubt of that.' It is rather a question 'of what their government will do about it, how far it will go to give of its strength and influence to others having the high and noble sense of duty.' To this the ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT (Rep.) replies that America, for its part, "has a trust that it cannot betray" nor, in his opinion, "can they who come from afar to join with us in this vast consummation of the home and direction of mankind extend the responsibility to their own countrymen to civilization. They cannot and must not fail."

A Stripped Story

The time-honored story of the boot-leather who admonishes his customer to "wait till I come back" has penetrated the fess of London, according to the LONDON CHRONICLE, which prints the following version:

An Englishman visiting a town in the United States was tormented by a truly European thirst, and was advised by one "in the know" to go to a boot-black at a certain street corner, hand him a specified number of dollars, and ask for a "ton dollar shin."

The visitor followed the instructions faithfully.

"Right," said the boot-black, "hold my box, and I'll be right back."

"With that he disappeared, and at the end of half an hour had not returned. The Englishman grew tired of waiting and went away. Reaching his hotel, he examined the boot-black's box, and what do you think was inside it?"

Luxury Air Express

A new type of air express to carry nine passengers, in addition to the pilot, has been evolved by the De Havilland Company at its English works, says the LONDON EXPRESS.

The machine is to be the last word in aerial luxury. Eight of the passengers will be accommodated in a roomy saloon, while another will sit with the pilot.

Special attention has been paid to the ventilation of the cabin; exhaust fans will be fitted in the roof, which will also have glass panels. Fresh air will be forced through pipes along the floor, and in winter, when the height at which the air express will fly the temperature is nearly always near freezing point, air that has been warmed by an ingenious method of using the heat of the engine will be forced in to the cabin.

Adventures of the Twins

Oliver Roberts Earlean

LAND OF THE WIGGLEFINS

Down under the sea went the Twins in their Magic Green Shoes to the place where two ocean currents meet and the fish from the North-going South, pass the fish from the South going North, and the creatures from the East going West shove aside those from the West going East. This place is called the Land of the Wigglefins, and there it is that Captain Pennywinkle tries to keep order, with the help of his trusty and tried sea-horse, Curly.

Curly was so called—not, as you may suppose, because he had a curly mane or a curly tail (he hadn't a hair on him)—but because he had no feet, and when he wished to stay in a certain place he did so by twisting the end of him 'round a sea-weed, or anything handy, and holding on. He had little fins on his back which looked like wings, and if Curly had been a hundred times bigger and had seven heads, he'd have looked like a dragon. Curly loved Captain Pennywinkle—or Cap'n as he was usually called—and Cap'n Pennywinkle loved him, and they got along beautifully. Curly was quite as useful to his little master as Sprinkle-Blow's umbrella was to Sprinkle-Blow, or Flipperty-Flap's shoes were to him, or the Bobadil Finn's wishing ring, or last, but not least, the Green Shoes to Nancy and Nick. Being magic and out of the Fairy Queen's stables, Curly could do almost anything. He spoke English quite well, as did his master. But there! I'm telling about the horse before I'm telling about his master, which is just as bad as putting the cart before the horse. You must know about Cap'n Pennywinkle. Really Driny Ocean would be the most mixed up place in the world, were it not for the order he keeps. (To be Continued)

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Discoverer Tells Schlitz Bros. Co., Voigt's Drug Store, Union Pharmacy—and All Good Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allenhu Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work. He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body. With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system. He freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Schlitz Bros. Co., Voigt's Drug Store and Union Pharmacy have been appointed agents for Allenhu in this vicinity with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money on the first two bottles to all who state they received no benefit. adv.

WARDENS TAKE 20 GUNS FROM VIOLATORS OF LAW

Madison—The state has confiscated more than twenty guns in possession of persons found deer hunting before the opening of the season, the conservation commission announced on Monday.

These arms were sold at auction and have brought from $5 to $40 each.

State officials show no leniency toward illegal hunters.

"Whenever we confiscate a gun," said W. E. Barber, chairman of the commission, "we always hear a hard luck tale how the gun was borrowed."

The other day a warden confiscated a gun which was very valuable and the hunter not only said that it was borrowed but that it was borrowed from a man who had borrowed it from someone else.

"That was our prize hard luck tale, but a man who shoots a deer before the season opens deserves no sympathy in this matter."

82 Years Old and As Good as a Youngster

"7 or 8 years ago I was a very sick man. Doctors said catarrh trouble of stomach and bowels, affecting the liver and heart. For more than a year I wanted to die, but could not. Upon the advice of a friend I tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and although 82 years old I now feel as good as a youngster." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists. adv.

FOX CLUB DRIVE NETS 30 MEMBERS

Kaukauna Club Making Elaborate Plans for Winter Entertainment

Kaukauna—About 30 applicants have been signed up for membership in the Fox club in the last week, through the efforts of the present members who are conducting a membership drive. No official check up will be made until the campaign ends Dec. 1, but it is estimated there are at least 30 candidates.

The club is divided into teams headed by captains and each team is working for the prizes. Edward Haas, Ves Perens, Lester Brenzel, Harry Lautert and Edward McMorow are the captains.

The proceeds from the Fox minstrel revue will be spent to refurbish the club rooms. A definite program of activity for the year will be inaugurated. The club now has 40 members and the goal has been set at 75.

Steps are being taken to put a strong basketball team in the field. The "open door" policy has been adopted which gives every man and boy in the city who is interested in game an opportunity to practice with the club. The plan will practically make it a city team although the management will continue in the hands of club members. It is expected that anyone who "makes" the team will join the club although he will not be obliged to do so. Frequent practice nights are already being held at the auditorium. A committee of Edward Rennicke, Ves Perens and Edward Haas has been appointed to handle the affairs of the team and to arrange for games.

Alfred Wyro and Robert Adams left Monday for a visit at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Wyro will continue from there to Mont Rosa, Ind., where he will attend school. Robert Adams will go to Covington, Ky., his home. He spent the weekend with friends in Kaukauna.

DOG'S MUTE TESTIMONY FORCES 5 GUILTY PLEAS

Antigo.—A big, reddish brown hound, with lop ears, "queered" the defense of five men arraigned in court here charged with violating the game laws.

The quintet was accused of hunting deer with a dog. All denied bringing the animal into the forest, claiming it was a stray dog, which they picked up.

Just as one witness testified he never saw the hound before the day the conservation warden arrested him, the dog was let into the courtroom. At once he went to the foot of the witness and laid down. When the defendant rose and returned to join the other four the dog followed him.

As a result the five men, Charles, Matthew and Peter Schmidt and H. Hoos and John Redmond, changed their pleas to guilty and were fined $50 each.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home
Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—infamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COUNTY BOARD MAKES CHANGES IN ROAD BOARD

P. H. Ryan is Appleton's Representative—Adopt Salary Reductions

The new county, state, road and bridge committee was elected at the meeting of the county board Tuesday morning and consists of P. H. Ryan, Appleton; Joseph Doerflinger, Kimberly; George F. Fleuder, Seymour; A. M. McCrone, Deer Creek and J. J. Werner, Hortonville. P. H. Ryan was elected over Louis Jensen by a vote of 23 to 17, and A. M. McCrone over E.

F. Speer by a vote of 27 to 13. The clerk was instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for the other three members.

John Wagner, who has held the position for several terms and who had no opposition, received a unanimous vote for reelection as did also Dr. F. P. Doherty as county physician. Charles Freund succeeded himself as trustee of the county asylum, and P. J. Rohen was selected as trustee of the county sanatorium, succeeded Mr. Jackson. David Hodgins was elected as the new member of the committee on common schools.

Adopt Salary Report.
The discussion that followed the report of the special committee on salaries which was laid over from Monday afternoon occupied nearly an hour and finally resulted in its adoption without change. At times there were amendments and amendments to amendments but they were all cleared away and the vote on the original report was 40 to 1. The greatest contention was over the superintendent of the workhouse and the deputy county clerk, whose salaries a portion of the board objected to being reduced.

BRIAND GREETES AMERICA

Premier Aristide Briand of France waves his greetings to America as he lands from the S. S. Lafayette to attend the disarmament conference.

The salary of the stenographer in the office of the superintendent of schools was cut $100 by the special committee's report but a resolution was introduced Tuesday morning granting an increase to $100 per month which will be acted upon later in the session. The report of the special salary committee recommended that the various office hours be from 9 to 12 in the morning and from 1:30 to 5 p. m. The report of the committee on equalization was adopted without change and by a unanimous vote. The report of the county highway commissioner was adopted Monday afternoon. The report of the county training school showed an enrollment of 37 students which is increasing with the advance of winter. It showed that 75 per cent of teachers of the county schools are graduates of that institution. It also showed that the school had materially reduced its expenses but notwithstanding it had overdrawn its funds $2,344.14. The same appropriation as last year was recommended. The report of the committee on common schools mentioned the need of a trust officer. A resolution expressing the gratitude of the supervisors for the kindness shown patients of the county sanatorium by various individuals and organizations was adopted by a rising vote. Reports and resolutions of the county, state road and bridge committee were unanimously adopted.

Because the weekly meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce falls on Thanksgiving the meeting will be held on Friday at the usual hour.

Speaks to Rotary
Attorney James McGillan of Green Bay was the guest of Appleton Rotary club at a luncheon Thursday noon at the Sherman house. A special program was given which was followed by an address by Mr. McGillan. Practically all of the members of the local chapter were in attendance at the luncheon.

The facts are that about half of the votes are from the First, Second and Fourth wards. When the count is completed a statement will be made showing the number of votes cast from each ward and the way the majority in each ward voted. That information, in tabulated form, together with the ballots themselves, are to be sent to the Wisconsin highway commission.

Everyone who has an interest of the city at heart is urged to cast a ballot in this referendum. This is intended to learn the real wishes of Appleton's people, not the desires of the few who have personal interests in the location of the bridge. This probably will be your only chance to show where you stand and it should not be passed over lightly. Let the common council and the highway commission know where YOU want that new bridge.

The girl described the "tender attentions" of Landru to her every whim.

When she withdrew, an alienist took the stand and testified that in 1904 he had examined Landru who then seemed to be "on the frontier of madness" but did not cross because of his great intellectual activity.

caso eastern holdings are menaced. Thus Japan would help check an Indian rebellion or British troops would help quell a Korean uprising. The treaty also binds the nations to give one another military aid if attacked in these eastern holdings by a foreign power, although Britain later inserted a clause eliminating nations with which she had a general treaty of arbitration. United States is considered in this class, although no treaty ever has been signed.

CITRUS FRUITS ARE HEALTHY INSURANCE

By the Merchants' Ship Act of 1868, all English ships were required to carry enough lime or lemon juice to give every member of the crew one ounce a day.

This was done because it insured the sailors against scurvy.

Citrus fruits are insurance against many other ills. They contain vitamins, which are necessary to health and are scarce in our winter diet. They have an alkaline reaction and counteract the excessive acid in the blood from which most of us suffer. They supply the mineral water which is milled away from so many of our foods.

Citrus fruits should be eaten every day for the sake of health. Every housewife should have the book of recipes for orange and lemon dishes. You can secure from our Washington Information Bureau a free booklet giving dozens and dozens of delicious, tempting methods of serving these fruits on your table.

Cut out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Print name and address or be sure to write plainly.

'Lovers' Lane' Of Other Days Now Is Plain 'Three Miles' To College Girl

Lawrence Coeds and Men, Too, Can Show Heels to Most Strenuous Hikers in Appleton if They Really Want to

When you went to Lawrence college or when you knew Lawrence students, the most popular walk was "Lovers' Lane," that walk which led you across John-st. bridge, along South River-st. and back to town by the way of Lake-st. bridge. That same walk is still popular with the students but with a difference. When you speak to Hiking is by far the most popular sport at the college and has been for some time. Many girls are veteran hikers and may be found "on the hoof," early and late. They find them-

CITY IS PREPARED TO FIGHT WITH SNOW

"Let the snow come. We are ready for it." When O. F. Weissberger, city engineer, made that remark, he was thinking of the ease and speed with which the streets will be kept open this winter.

last spring is to be put into action the moment there is a demand for it. A cab will be built at the rear to protect the operator in severe weather. The machine then will pull a plow or scraper, and with its powerful engine and certain traction will force the snow to the sides of the streets with ease. Roads are expected to be opened in record time this winter after each snowfall.

Y. M. C. A. POPULAR WITH GRID SQUADS

One of the Appleton institutions that has been popular during the football season and rendered a helpful service is the Y. M. C. A. Each visiting football team on the high school schedule has used the building and its facilities before and after the games.

The men changed their suits in the dressing rooms and afforded locker service for their clothes. Following the contests they have had the use of the shower baths and rest rooms. The visiting students also have made use of the association building as their "hangout" when not at the football field.

With the contact thus established with high school games, the Y. M. C. A. naturally is expected by the public to know the scores. The telephones therefore are kept busy for about two

This is only one of the many ways in which the Y. M. C. A. is making its facilities and organizations of use to the Appleton people.

STEPS FROM STAGE TO WRITING FAME

Marjorie Patterson Says People Should Follow Their Creative Passions

By Alice Roho
New York—What is the greatest gift a girl may have—beauty, brains, youth, health, money, ancestry, family position, great genius?
What if one didn't have to choose, but had all of these?

Well, this is the lot of one of the most interesting young women in New York.

She is Marjorie Patterson, actress and author, the great-grandniece of Betsy Patterson, whose marriage to Jerome Bonaparte, young brother of Napoleon, started off international marriages with a romance that has made present-day alliances with reigning royal families quite commonplace by comparison.

But although Miss Patterson pours tea from an ancient silver tea set brought over from Ireland by Betsy Patterson's father, and sits in Betsy Patterson's chair, and sleeps in Betsy Patterson's bed, she thinks the real aim of life is giving expression to her creative force in the best way possible. So she has to her credit one of the most discussed and lauded literary achievements in bookdom—"A Woman's Man."

Two other books, "Fortunate," written in Rome when she was 19, and "Dust of the Road," written in England when she was a member of Sir Frank Benson's company, have attained best seller proportions.

"I believe that heredity plays an important part in life," says Miss Patterson, "but inherited tendencies, no matter how fine, do a minimum of good unless developed through individual power."

"If a man or woman feels that overpowering creative force, calling for expression, it is the person's duty to follow the call. Some women feel it for domestic life and become great mothers; others feel it for professional life."

"Personally, the life of society means nothing to me."
Miss Patterson left the stage, at the height of attainment as Pierrot in "Pierre the Prodigal," to devote herself to writing.

"I am said to resemble Betsy Patterson," said the great-grandniece of Madame Bonaparte. "Perhaps I find my romance in work. At present I am finishing a play, 'Pan in Ambush' and am working on another drama. Yes, work is the great motive force in life."

Pierce Park Property Increasing In Value

Pierce park, purchased by the city of Appleton last summer, has proved a paying proposition. People who argued that its ownership by the city would remove an assessment of $20,000 from the tax roll have lost their only argument against the park. One has only to walk or ride past the park to see how the city benefited. Assurance that this beautiful wooded tract on the river would be come a park immediately raised the value of lots opposite it on Second-st. and made that locality popular for homes.

It is estimated that houses valued at $50,000 have been erected along Second-st. since the park was bought and a number of people have purchased lots on which they intend to erect houses next year. Values on other nearby streets also have been strengthened and new homes are appearing. It is estimated that there is room available across from the park for at least 20 more homes besides eight or ten just erected.

Get Back Purchase Price
Addition to the assessment rolls of the property adjacent to the park will more than offset the $20,000 on which taxes were paid on the park each year. This will grow and the $29,500 paid for the site will be made up many times over as a result. It is believed that Pierce park would have been acquired years ago if the people could have been able to appreciate the way in which the city treasury would be benefited.

Believing the park locality will develop, Chris Peterson of Neenah, has purchased the building at the corner of Mason and Second-sts. formerly owned by the Memorial Presbyterian congregation, and more recently owned by Joseph Melchini. The building will be remodeled into a writing room for street car patrons and Mr. Peterson will establish a store for candies, refreshments and provisions.

MAY PROVIDE HELP TO WRAP UP GIFTS

In mailing Christmas packages this year it is possible patrons of the post-office will be given an opportunity to have them securely wrapped in the lobby of the federal building according to a letter which Postmaster Gustave Keller has received. The letter reads:

Postmasters will be granted permission to offer to the public facilities for wrapping and tying packages previous to the Christmas rush. It is suggested that the concession will be given to someone who will take space in the lobby and give courteous and particular attention to the needs of the public, charging a reasonable amount for his services and the material used.

"This activity must be carefully supervised to see that the public is thoroughly pleased and satisfied with the services and should be discontinued following the rush."

URGE LARGE CUTS IN SALARIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS

Committee Makes Recommendations to Board—Discusses Motor Cop

The special committee consisting of Mr. Schaefer, David Hodgins, Charles Slevert, William Beck and William Hutchinson appointed by Chairman D. J. Ryan to fix the salaries of county officials for the term beginning Jan. 1, 1923, recommended that the salary of the county clerk be reduced to $2,700 per year; treasurer to $2,500 to include salary of deputy sheriff for $2,500 to which is to be added salary of deputy and certain fees; clerk of the court to $1,800; district attorney to $2,000; county physician to $850; superintendent of workhouse to $1,500; deputy officers to from $900 to $1,000. The reductions range all the way from $200 to $500 in the case of officials and deputies except in the case of the sheriff who is cut $1,000 and the county physician who is cut $50. The report of the committee was laid over until Tuesday morning.

The report of the county highway commissioner laid over from Saturday was discussed at length, particularly that portion with reference to the building of a tool house. John Tracy suggested the renting of the former round house of the Wisconsin and Northern Railroad Co. which is no longer used, or the fair buildings at Hortonville or Seymour, while C. B. Ballard suggested if a new tool house is built that it be located at the county asylum, where a site could be secured without additional expense. John Diederich called attention to the tool house erected by Brown-co. and said something along that line was needed, where tools could be repaired as well as stored.

Hear Three Reports
The reports of trustees, attending physician and matron of the county sanitarium was received and placed on file. The report of trustees showed that 79 patients were enrolled the past year and that the term of C. H. Jackson, trustee, expires at the end of the year. Dr. C. D. Boyd, attending physician, called attention to the need of an X-ray machine and the matron, Mrs. B. L. Boyle, extended her appreciation for the kindness shown the patients by residents of the county and various organizations. The report of the superintendent of the workhouse was also received and placed on file.

The introduction of a resolution favoring the appointment of a motorcycle officer to look after speeders on the county highways during the months of May, June, July, August, September and October at a salary of $300, he to furnish his own motorcycle, was followed by a lengthy discussion. Some of the supervisors were of the opinion that a competent man could not be secured at that salary especially if he was compelled to furnish his own motorcycle.

What Little Chute Did
John Tracy told that a salary was unnecessary, that the fines would more than offset all expenses and called upon Anton Jensen of Little Chute to relate the experience of his village in this direction. Mr. Jansen said its motorcycle officer not only paid for the motorcycle he was furnished, he also earned a salary of from $150 to $175 per month from the arrests he made. As he was not on duty all the time the supervisor saw no reason why the county could not induce him to extend his territory if it saw fit. The resolution was referred to the county, state road and bridge committee and district attorney with power to act.

A petition from the villages of Little Chute, Kimberly, Combined Locks and the town of Buchanan for the placing of a highway on the county patrol system was referred to the county, state road and bridge committee. Communications from the headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic concerning head stones for soldiers and the care of their graves, from Governor J. J. Blaine as to highway construction in the state and the amount of funds available for that purpose; and from A. L. Stone as to the destruction of noxious weeds were received and placed on file.

Provide for Nurse
The reading of a communication from the state board of health relative to county health nurses, salary, expenses, hours of service and office quarters was followed by a discussion of the situation in Outagamie-co. Chairman D. J. Ryan called the attention of the board to the fact that the expense account of the local nurse had exceeded the appropriation and suggested that steps be taken to make up the shortage. He also said no steps had been taken for fitting up an office in the courthouse for the nurse where she is supposed to be located and that due to this fact she has been occupying office quarters jointly with the Red Cross chapter which asks that it be compensated to the amount of $200.

Judge A. M. Spencer corroborated the chairman's statement and said there was some talk of providing the nurse with a room on the third floor of the courthouse adjoining the office of the county superintendent of schools, but that a new floor was needed and that it would cost a considerable sum to put the room in condition for occupancy. He thought it would be a good plan for the nurse to remain at the office of the Red Cross if the board could make satisfactory arrangements.

PUPILS LEARN HOW CITIZENS ARE MADE

Lincoln School Students Watch Citizenship Proceedings as Part of Work

Lasting impressions were received by seventh grade pupils of Lincoln school when they attended a citizenship hearing at the courthouse last week. The visit to the courthouse took the place of their regular citizenship class and was the most practical instruction they could receive.

Their impressions were learned from essays on the hearing submitted a few days later. Some of these impressions follow:

"I found out how foreigners become citizens. I never before had the slightest idea how it was done. It was interesting to hear the reports of the different witnesses."

"This is the first time I have ever visited the court house. I now know how they conduct the ceremony of citizenship. Most of the men that petitioned for papers were old men, with only one or two young men."

"This morning I learned the way foreigners are admitted as citizens of the United States. I partly learned the order of court proceedings. I saw how citizens of other countries are made subjects of our country. I now know how the court room is arranged and think it did me very much good to go."

"My visit showed me how necessary it was to go to school and the things you have to do and go through to become a citizen of the United States. In order to become a citizen of the United States, one must know what is going on in the world as well as to know and obey all the laws of the United States."

"Because we were going to the courthouse instead of having our lessons in class, I made up my mind to enjoy my visit as much as possible. The judge called the court to order very formally. It seemed strange that in these modern times the judge should talk so old-fashioned, but I suppose it is a custom that is hard to get over and I rather liked it. After the formalities the foreigners were sworn in and they answered the questions put to them by the examiner. Some of them could answer the questions better than I could, and I was born in the United States. Then they had to swear to be loyal to the United States. After passing and saluting the flag they were real citizens of the United States and I am sure that they were proud of it."

HOUSE SHORTAGE RELIEVED BY 100 NEW RESIDENCES

Water Department Records Show at Least 110 New Homes in Appleton

Appleton's housing shortage has been relieved by the erection of not less than 110 new houses during the year 1921. More may have been built and others remodeled into apartments giving room for additional families.

Positive information that 110 entirely new houses were built comes from the municipal water department. Fred Morris, secretary of the water commission, recently compiled some statistics from the permit records showing how many requests had been filed for water service. More than 300 permits for service were issued to date for all purposes, indicating that

Judge Heard 550 Trials In Last 12 Months

The report of the municipal judge to the county board showed that 55 cases under the city ordinance, 95 civil actions and 253 criminal cases were disposed of during the year. The report did not include 104 cases tried in the upper branch, 29 of which were criminal.

a number of houses have been remodeled.

With the arrival of winter most of the houses under construction this summer have been completed. This has relieved some of the anxiety which accompanies house hunting in Appleton, because several places are known to be vacant and landlords are out seeking tenants, something which has not been done here for several years.

Most living costs have dropped but surveys taken in Appleton have revealed that rents either maintained their high level or were increased. The addition of approximately 150 homes takes away part of the abnormal demand for living quarters.

Suppose you had the settling of your neighbor's problem—

SUPPOSE it was Brown's case that was up for consideration. Brown is heading in a direction that has brought trouble to a lot of people—a direction known to be full of risks. Brown himself isn't going any too good. There are days when he hits the bumps harder than he can comfortably stand—and he shows it.

There's another road that Brown could travel safely—smooth, comfortable, pleasant, and absolutely safe.

And Brown came to you for advice. And you'd look at the facts and you'd say: "Why, Brown, there's nothing to this thing. It doesn't take any argument to decide this. Turn to the right and take the smooth, safe road, and Do It Now."

Suppose the road Brown is on is the coffee or tea road. Hundreds have had trouble on that road. Doctors have sounded the warning for the public, and raised the "no-traffic" sign for their patients—time and time again. The drugs, caffeine in coffee and then in tea, keep whipping the nerves—tending to interfere with sleep, upset digestion, produce high blood pressure, and to wear down health and efficiency by the disturbance of rest and nervous balance. Some folks go a long way on the road; some folks don't seem to notice the jolts—for a while, anyway.

But what would you say to Brown about choosing the safe road instead of the risky one?

And suppose Brown were you?

Postum users travel the sunrise road—away from the coffee and tea jolts and risks.

Postum is free from the possibility of harm for any one, and full of comfort and satisfaction for every one. Even the little children can share in the delights of a hot, mealtime cup of Postum.

No fears, either that Postum will rob the night of sleep as coffee so often does. Postum is a friendly drink for any one any time. And it's good! When you've tried Postum a few days you'll wonder why you ever thought of sacrifice in leaving off coffee or tea. Rich and flavorful and satisfying, Postum suits the taste so that there's no longer any thought that you should drink it; only the thought that you want to drink it.

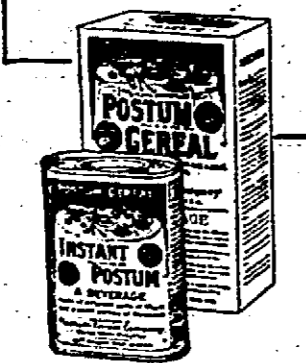

Postum opened the better road and the safe road for coffee and tea drinkers more than a quarter of a century ago, and a steadily increasing multitude is traveling that road—up and on to better enjoyment, better efficiency, better accomplishment.

You can buy Postum wherever good food and drink are sold and served. You can begin, now, this turn to the right road which you would so quickly recommend for Brown—by ordering Postum from your family grocer or telling your waiter at the restaurant to serve you Postum instead of coffee or tea.

Make Postum according to directions and enjoy its delicious flavor; find the change in "feeling" after a week's use of Postum. Let the family join you in the trip up the sunrise way.

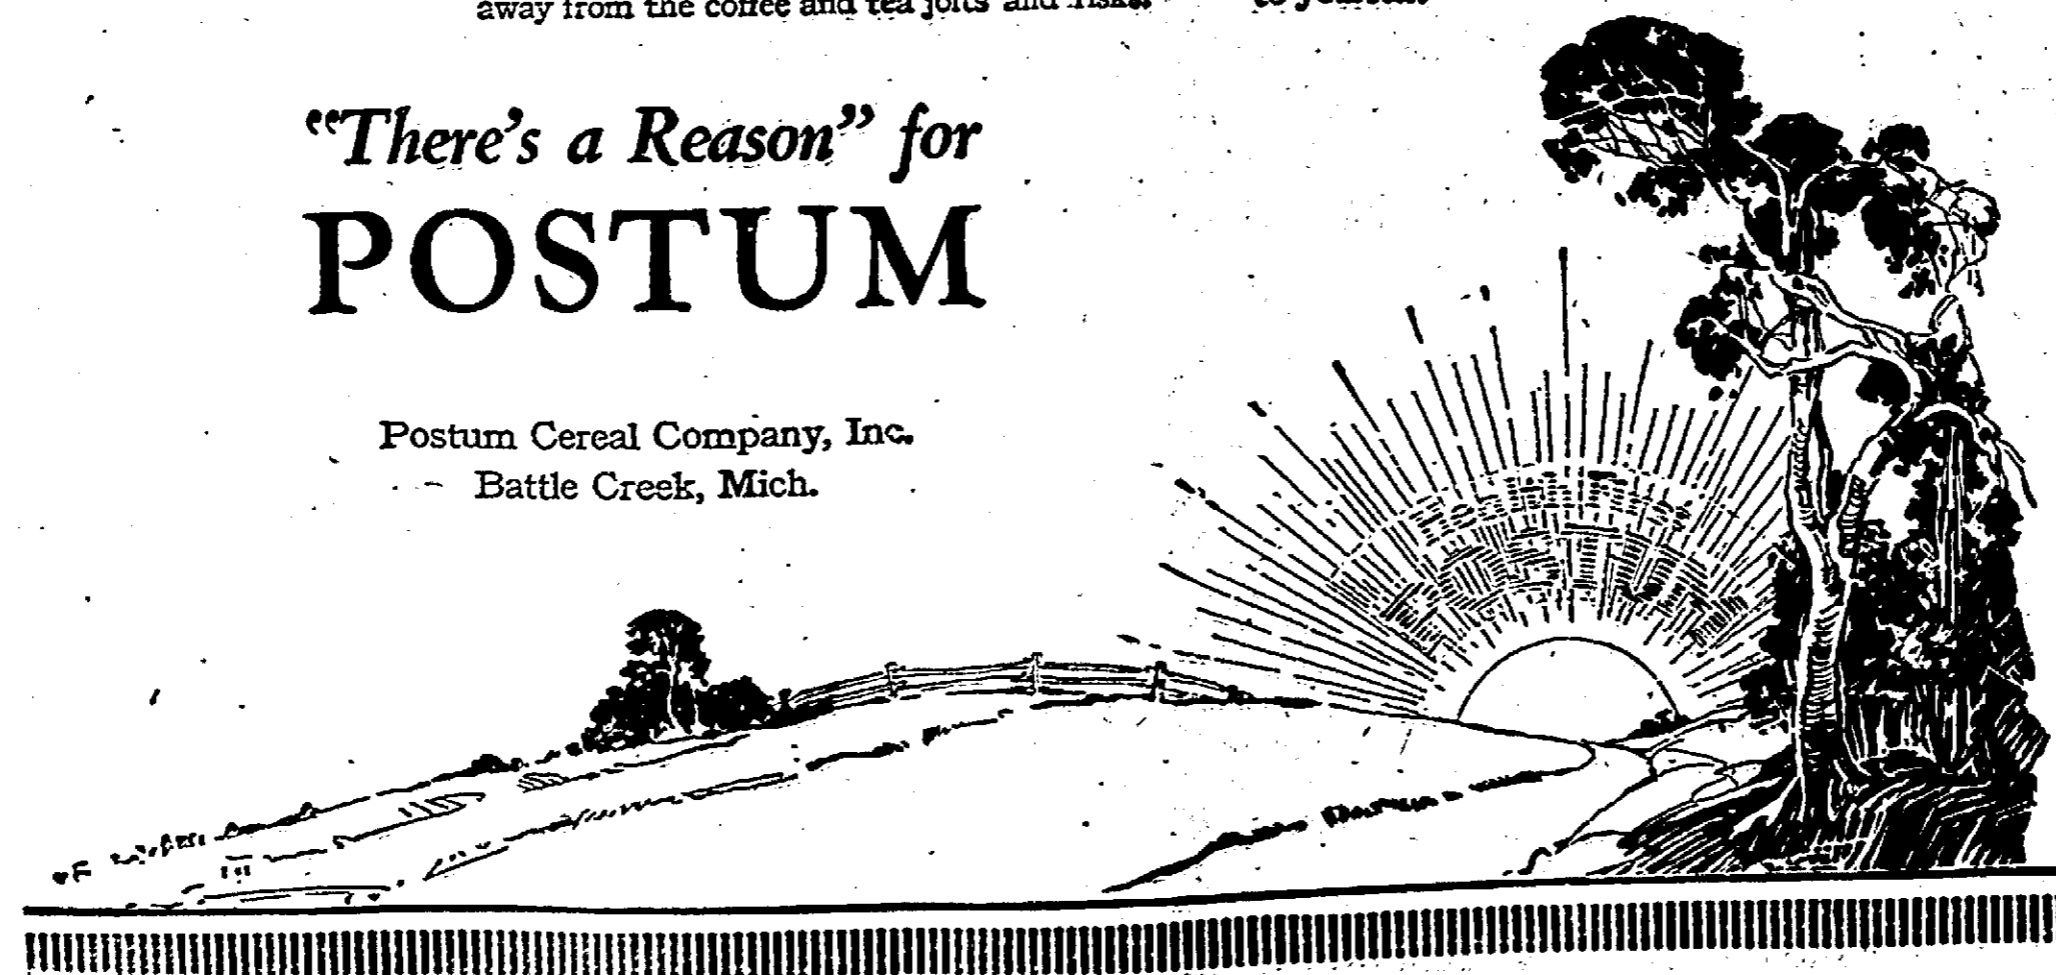

You'd know what to say to Brown—say it to yourself.

POSTUM comes in two forms: INSTANT POSTUM (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. POSTUM CEREAL (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

The Viaduct
Editor, Post-Crescent — Where should the viaduct be built? That is the problem that confronts the people of Appleton today. When the city officials employed the Wisconsin highway commission to investigate the bridge problem and to decide just where the best place to locate the bridge would be they made a far sighted and broad minded move. It was understood that these engineers were to render an unbiased decision as to the location of the bridge, or at least present their findings to the city.

It seems, however, that the solution of the problem is to be a political one. Articles that have appeared in the Post-Crescent state that certain business interests are attempting to influence the highway engineers in their decision because some of the engineers are said to favor the Cherry street location. This is indeed a very poor and selfish way to settle such a momentous problem. Petitions favoring one location or the other are being circulated and bridge ballots have appeared in the Post-Crescent. These petitions and ballots will perhaps contain the names of only 25 per cent of the city's voters. What about the opinion of the other 75 per cent? It appears that the interests that circulate petitions most energetically will influence the commission as to where the viaduct should be built, if the location of the viaduct is to be decided politically there was no need of employing the highway engineers at all, for the question could have been at the poles two months ago.

It is the DUTY of the highway commissioners to render an unprejudiced decision, but if they want the people's opinion the logical way to get it would be to first publish the results of their investigation. With the facts before them the people would have a reason for their opinions, whereas today they have no real facts on which to base an opinion. The only way to get a true opinion from the people would be to have all the people vote on it instead of only some of them.

ASTONISHING GAINS IN STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

Reason Given for Reasonable
Increase in Sale of New Product

For the past several months druggists have been amazed at the way the sale of the product known as Garren's Tonic has increased by leaps and bounds. A thing of this kind is unusual and naturally brings on the question: "What's causing it?"

People who had been weak, lacking in energy, nervous, irritable and really suffering are testifying voluntarily every day that Garren's Tonic has put new life, energy and endurance into their weak body, withered tissue and shattered nerves. It is only natural that they are loudly praising this wonderful product to others suffering as they were, and the consequent swelling of its sale.

Garren's Tonic is sold in Appleton by the Schlitz Bros. Co., in Kaukauna by E. A. Meyer, in Greenville by H. H. Schulze, in Dale by Abends Pharmacy, in Bear Creek by John W. Stutler, in Seymour by S. G. McCord, and by the leading druggists in every city.

HILL WANTS TO BE SURE OF WHIPPING VAN WURDEN

George Hill, local grappler is working hard to be in fine shape for his handicap match with Van Wurden the "Flying Dutchman" at Oshkosh Nov. 30. Hill has agreed to throw the middleweight twice in an hour.

A typographical error last week made the Post-Crescent say the match would take place Nov. 29, instead of 30, causing Hill considerable embarrassment.

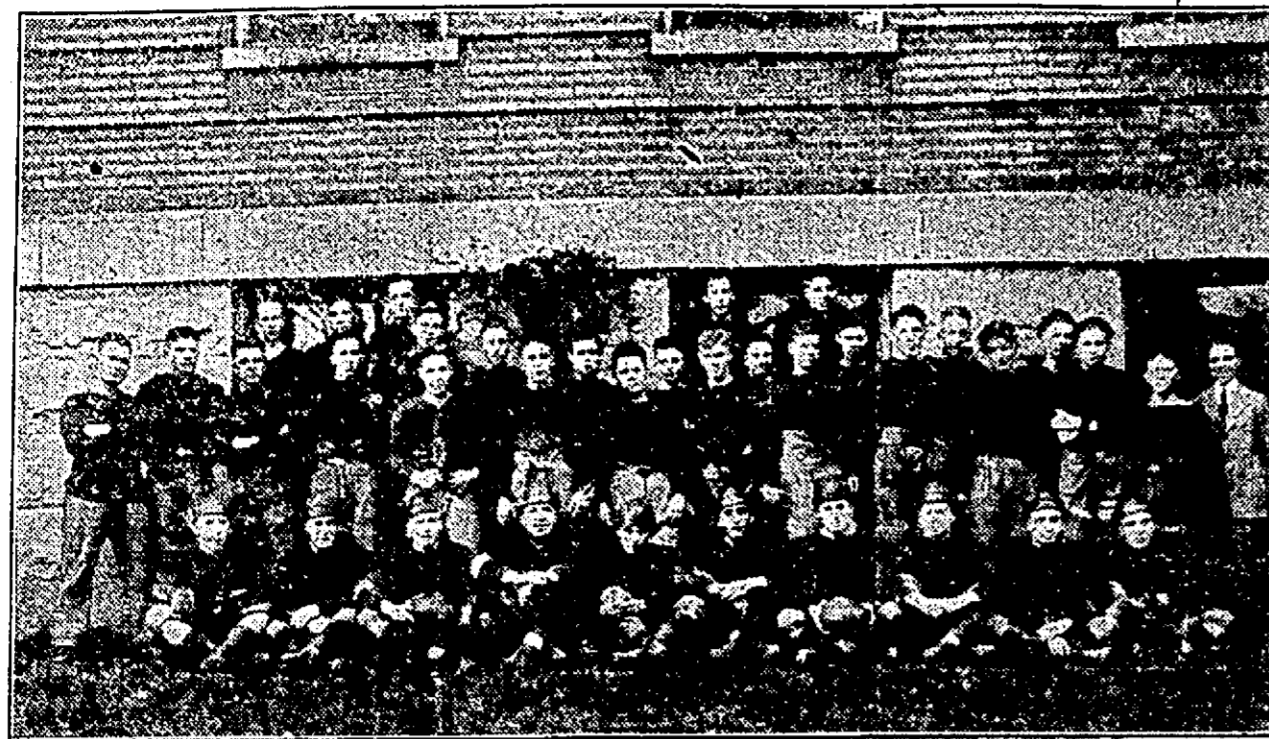

Van Wurden, it is said, plans to carry the battle to Hill in the hope that if he can keep the local man hustling he can last the hour without being pinned to the mat twice.

PADDOCK'S SPRINTING RECORD TO BE APPROVED

By United Press Leased Wire

Chicago—Approval of the world's sprinting record in the 220 yard dash made by the sensational Pacific coast runner, Charles Paddock in the national games last July, will be given Tuesday by the A. A. U. convention in session here.

HERE is the squad which has given the high school football teams of this section of Wisconsin all the fight they wanted this season. The 35 men in moleskins pictured above constitute the gridiron squad of Appleton high school which was coached into one of the very best teams in Wisconsin.

Fourteen of the men now are on their way to Nebraska where on Thursday they will battle the Beatrice, Neb., high school team in the first intersectional game ever played by an Appleton high school football team and one of the first ever played by any high school team in the state.

Coach A. K. Vincent had a number of regulars around whom to build his team this year. His only reverse was at the hands of Antigo, early in the season. But for that defeat Appleton would have had the best record in Wisconsin.

Financially, this was one of the most successful years in the history of high school football. The games have been well attended and careful management of finances by L. C. High, faculty manager, insured a neat surplus at the end of the season.

Vincent has kept Appleton among the gridiron leaders of the state ever since he took charge of athletics at the local school. His teams have been playing good ball and he has developed several star players.

Today's Sport Angle

From the viewpoint of the spectator, the forward pass is unquestionably the most interesting play in football.

For years football gained but little headway with the general public. The crowds that went to the games as a rule were made up largely of the undergraduates and the alumni.

The failure of football to become popular outside the colleges was due to the great difficulty in following the play. In the days of five yards in three downs, mass play was featured.

It was next to impossible to determine who was carrying the ball. Occasionally an end run would be tried and the spectators would en masse. That proved open play was liked.

Then came the forward pass and the dawn of a new era in football. The forward pass with its many variations. The possibility of running and kicking from the same formation, gave the game a new angle. It opened up the play. It removed the premium that had always been placed on weight. It added the element of uncertainty to an alarming degree.

It didn't take long for the public to express its approval of the new football. Today teams that once regarded 5,000 as a big crowd are drawing 25,000 or more. Open play, which originated with the forward pass, has been the magnet that has won the approval of the sport loving public.

Football coaches are well aware of the fact. In practice much attention is paid to developing the open game. Yet in actual competition, there seems to be a great fear on the part of many coaches to open up. They refrain from playing the game the public came to see simply because of the great uncertainty the forward pass entails. Recently I saw a team beat 7 to 0, insist on playing the old style of game until only five minutes of time remained. Then the coach gave orders to open up and four passes netted 70 yards. The whistle blew with the ball within the opponent's twenty yard line. The attack had started too late. Such is the fault of a great many coaches. Why?—E. E.

ELKS PLANNING FOR 400 PIN TEAMS AT STATE TOURNAMENT

Every Lodge in the State is Urged to Begin Preparations for Tourney

Preparations for entertaining at least 400 teams at the Wisconsin Elk bowling tournament here next February and March are being made by the local committee in charge of the big affair. Letters have been sent to every lodge in Wisconsin, suggesting the number of teams that should be entered and urging immediate action on formation of teams and their entry in the tournament.

The local committee consists of H. L. Davis, president, H. L. Dayson, vice president and James H. Balliet, secretary.

Appleton and Milwaukee are expected to enter at least 50 teams in the big meeting. Oshkosh, with a membership of about 770, is being urged to send at least 25 teams.

The minimum allotment of teams to other cities, follows: Antigo, 10; Fond du Lac, 25; Green Bay, 35; Janesville, 35; Kaukauna, 10; Kenosha, 20; La Crosse, 8; Madison, 15; Manitowish, 15; Marinette, 7; Menasha, 10; Racine, 20; Sheboygan, 25; Wausau, 10.

DOPE BUCKET HAS BEEN KICKED ALL OVER THE GRIDIRON

Still a Few Chances Left for Giving the "Dope" a Few More Blows

New York—Just a few more upheavals of form and the 1921 football season will be a complete success.

Let Pittsburgh beat Penn State, Penn win from Cornell and the Army route the Navy and the theory that no one knows a thing about football will be proven.

There has been enough already to make this belief sound.

Take Pittsburgh for instance. The Panthers were regarded as one of the strongest teams in the east until Lafayette and Nebraska came along.

Notre Dame is rated by the east as the greatest all round team ever seen around the Atlantic seaboard. Yet, Iowa trimmed the Hoosiers, although Rocky's team gained three times as many yards.

Take Ohio State.

Ohio State, western conference champions, fell before Oberlin, a small Ohio college, and then swept through a hard schedule until they reached Illinois, the easiest mark on the card. Illinois won and threw State out of the championship.

Penn State's only reverse was a tie with Harvard in a game in which the Crimson was outplayed throughout.

Yale showed such form that the Blues went against Harvard a 2 to 1 favorite, but Harvard won.

Penn was swamped by every team of any ability until Dartmouth came along and Penn slipped up and tied the Hanover team.

Rutgers had won only three games but a much stronger West Virginia eleven went down in the last game of the season.

Penn State and Iowa are the only big teams that escaped the knife of the upsetter. Iowa is through for the year, but Penn State has Pittsburgh to beat Thursday. Pittsburgh might do it.

Cornell has treated every opponent shamefully and only Penn remains in the way. It would be in keeping with form as it has run to see Cornell go down.

The last blow to the dope will come Saturday if the Army beats the powerful eleven from Annapolis.

DARTMOUTH COACH MAY GET GATE FROM GRADS

Failure of Dartmouth to do big things in football the last two seasons has caused the alumni to shout for more action. In football more action usually means a change in coaching.

Eastern Dartmouth "grads" look on Larry Bankart with favor. Cannell, the present coach, and Engelhorn are mentioned as his assistants. It would be an all-Dartmouth staff. A fund of $25,000 to cover the additional expense has been inaugurated in the east. Dartmouth's overwhelming defeat by Cornell started the campaign for bigger things in a football way.

YANKS AND CARDINALS ARRANGE SPRING GAMES

Interleague games seem to have become an established custom with a number of major league clubs. In the last three or four years there has been a great awakening in the south as far as baseball is concerned. Major league clubs who always lost money on training trips, have shown a goodly profit of late. The baseball fans in the south like to see teams from the rival major leagues clash. The New York Yankees have just announced they will play a five-game series with the St. Louis Cardinals in the spring and in all probability a 10-game series with the Brooklyn Nationals.

HOPPE WHIPS MOST DANGEROUS OPPONENT

Chicago—World's championship titles in balk line billiards are not uncommon to Willie Hoppe.

Hoppe eliminated Welker Cochran, 400 to 229 in Monday night's most important match, and annexed his fifth straight win of the world's tourney.

Jack Schaefer, whom Hoppe plays Tuesday night is the only possibility and Jack hasn't shown the skill which has marked the play of the champion all through the games. Schaefer has won four and lost one.

In the other match Schaefer trimmed Morningstar 400 to 200, meeting stiff opposition all the way.

Sport Views And News

There will be one topic less for the hot stove league this winter. Iowa has a clean claim to the Western conference title without any of the other teams even hoping in with a peep.

The Hawkeyes have gone through the season with a remarkable record and aside from taking a fall out of all their Big Ten opponents, they also have a win to their record over Notre Dame. This little feat alone puts Iowa away up in the football world.

Last fall, Coach Richards of Wisconsin said Ohio was unsportsmanlike and what's more mightily hard losers. When this statement came out it created a sensation in mid-west football circles but was passed over thinking that the Badger grid chief was having an attack of sour grapes after the Buckeye team had snatched away victory in the last minute of play. But now opinion has changed a bit. The Ohioans are yelping about their 7 to 0 upset at the hands of Illinois and claim that the forward pass on which the Illini counted was illegal. What was it Richards said about hard losers? Guess he had the right dope after all.

Marquette breezed through with a hard earned victory over Superior. The Twin City tribe micked up a pair of touchdowns and kicked both goals besides keeping the Lumberjack out of the scoring zone. Coach Johnson has built up a snappy machine and it wouldn't surprise us at all if Marquette trumped up us at all in the state title contest which is scheduled for Thanksgiving day at the Silver City.

Princeton beat Harvard. Yale defeated Princeton, and Harvard took a fall out of Yale. That is the fine little football mix up among the Big Three in the East. One thing is sure. None of these eleven will get a slice of the championship pie. Something to be thankful for, anyway.

CHICAGO SWIMMERS SET TWO NEW TANK RECORDS

Chicago—Two new world's swimming records were established here in an exhibition meet last night.

John Weltsmuller, Illinois A. C. star, hung up a new mark in the 100 yard swim for sixty foot pools, stroking the distance in 52 3-5. This tops Perry McGillivray's '54 flat.

Miss Sybil Bauer, also of the I. A. C., clipped four seconds off Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey's 150 yard back stroke record, by covering the distance in 2:06 1-5.

As the meet was held in the presence of the officials of the American Amateur union, it is announced Tuesday that the new marks will undoubtedly be adopted as official.

EIGHT TURKEYS WON AT GUN CLUB SHOOT

William Fainalek was the first shooter to win a turkey at the Thanksgiving turkey shoot given by Appleton Angling and Shooting club at its grounds last Sunday. Eight turkeys were awarded as prizes. The cold weather and high wind made accurate shooting impossible.

Other turkey winners were Arthur Jennings, New London; Karl Stansbury, H. Getschow, C. L. Chamberlain, E. A. Stanton, W. W. Willard, and George Puth, all of Appleton. Chamberlain was high gun, hitting eight targets in 10 shots. The prizes were two 15 pound turkeys and six 10-pound birds.

BOY SCOUT BASKETBALL TEAM WINS THIRD GAME

Boy Scouts of Troop 4 won their third successive basketball game of the season when they defeated the Little Chute high school team at Little Chute Monday night, 8 to 7. The team was handicapped because of the very slippery floor and the absence of Rossmessit, its star center.

The lineup of the local team was: D. Aylesworth, center; J. Green and S. Cohen, forwards; A. Belzer and W. Mehl, guards.

Any city team averaging 115 pounds and wishing a game should see Abe Belzer or phone 1549-W.

STOCKS CLIMB IN SHARP TRADE RUN

New York—The list steadied somewhat around mid-afternoon, under the stimulus of a sharp run up in a number of specialties. Davison Chemical was leader and after an early low at 48 1/2, suddenly ran up to above 53, a new high for the year.

American Ice after an early low at 69 1/2, again got above 71.

Adorable Dolls

Every baby just must have several new dolls this Christmas and especially do we want you to see our wonderful selection of them. Big ones and little ones and the kind that go to sleep when you put them to bed. Some have dark hair and snappy brown eyes, while others have light curls and pretty blue eyes. Really the expression on the faces of many give one the impression that they can almost talk. Make it a point to bring in the youngsters and let them feast their eyes on this beautiful display.

With gift buying already in full swing we take this opportunity to tell our patrons that our counters are full of Christmas inspirations and suggestions for gifts. As ever we have tried to get away from the ordinary and we believe we have succeeded in injecting a new snap and novelty into the coming holiday. Especially do we call your attention to the extremely low prices and the vast collection of practical and useful gifts.

Welcome to Santa Land!

(In the Basement)

For months we have been getting ready for the kiddies, and the grownups, too, for that matter. Now we can hardly wait to show you the new toys. Hundreds and hundreds of them—see the mechanical men, and mechanical animals, mechanical clowns all doing their stunts just like real people. Hundreds of new games that you never saw before—and books for the fellows who like adventure—and the best part of it all is the prices are so low that it won't hurt dad's pocketbook to get just about everything that a fellow wants.
